RESOLUTION.

The 30th June 1926.

No. 19609.—Attention is invited to the Civil Pensions (Commutation) Rules, published in Government of India, Finance Department, notification No. F.-158-C.S.R./25, dated the 21st January 1926.

2. It should be noted that in accordance with Rule 7 of the Rules, the Governor-General in Council has prescribed the table contained in Appendix 10 to the Civil Service Regulations in the case of pensioners whose applications are addressed to local Governments or to the Government of India.

3. In so far as Government servants under the administrative control of the Punjab Government are concerned, the Governor in Council and the Governor and Ministers have—

(1) delegated their powers to the High Commissioner under rule 2.

(2) decided to impose under rule 4 the condition that the sanctioning authority shall satisfy itself that the residue of pension which will be left after commutation is sufficient to maintain the pensioner in accordance with his station in life in retirement; due regard being had to the manner of application of the amount realised on commutation.

(3) prescribed, with reference to rule 6, the following rules regarding medical certificates :—

(i) Before the commutation of a pension is sanctioned, the pensioner shall produce a certificate as to his expectation of life signed by a medical officer of not lower standing than a Civil Surgeon, District Medical Officer or Presidency Surgeon. The sanctioning authority may, at its discretion, require the production of a second medical certificate or direct the pensioner to appear before a medical board. In the case of a pensioner who has been or is about to be granted an invalid pension the certificate must be that of a medical board.

(ii) The certifying medical authority shall subject the pensioner to a strict medical examination, requiring him to give such information as to his health and habits as is usually supplied by persons proposing to assure their lives in assurance companies, and shall report in the following terms :—

“ $\frac{\text{I}}{\text{We}}$ have carefully examined A. B. and $\frac{\text{am}}{\text{are}}$ of opinion that he $\frac{\text{is}}{\text{is not}}$ in good bodily health and $\frac{\text{has}}{\text{has not}}$ the prospect of an average duration of life. ”

In the case of impaired lives, the following shall be added :—

“ As A. B. is suffering from____________his age, for the purpose of commutation should be taken to be____________years.”

(iii) In the case of an applicant who has been or is about to be granted an invalid pension, the grounds of invaliding or the statement of the medical case shall be communicated to the certifying medical board before the certificate is signed.

(iv) The applicant should himself pay the medical officer's fee for examination except when a second medical opinion is required or the applicant is directed to appear before a medical board, in which cases the examination will be made free of charge by medical officers at the request of the authority competent to sanction the commutation.

4. Commutation, when sanctioned, shall take effect from a date, to be named in the order, which should ordinarily be about one month later than the date of the order ; and all calculations shall be made with reference to that date. Payment of the commuted portion of the pension will cease from the date specified and the sum payable on commutation will be paid on that date or as soon afterwards as possible.

NOTE.—In special cases the sanctioning authority may sanction the commutation with effect from an earlier date than that mentioned in this rule not preceding the date of the sanction, all calculations being made with reference to such earlier date.

No. 80.—The Punjab Registration of Medical Practitioners' (Amendment) Bill is published under the provisions of Rule 18 of the Punjab Legislative Council Rules for general information.

A Bill to amend the Punjab Registration of Medical Practitioners' Act, 1916.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Punjab Registration of Medical Practitioners' Act, 1916, in the manner hereinafter appearing, it is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Punjab Registration of Medical Practitioners' (Amendment) Act, 1926.

(2) It shall come into force on such date as the Local Government may by notification appoint in this behalf.

Amendment of section 5 of the Punjab Registration of Medical Practitioners' Act, 1916.

2. In section 5 of the Punjab Registration of Medical Practitioners' Act, 1916—

(i) in sub-section (1) for the word "thirteen" the word "sixteen" shall be substituted; and

(ii) for clause (b) of the same sub-section the following clause shall be substituted, namely:—

"(b) Eight members nominated by the Local Government, of whom one shall be an independent medical practitioner practising in the Punjab, two shall be nominated on the recommendation of the Chief Commissioner, North-West Frontier Province, and one on the recommendation of the Chief Commissioner, Delhi."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE question of providing a registration system for medical practitioners practising in the Delhi Province and in the North-West Frontier Province has been under the consideration of the Government of India for some time past; but it has not been considered desirable to have separate medical councils for these two Provinces. No residential qualifications are prescribed under section 13 of the Punjab Registration of Medical Practitioners' Act, 1916, and medical practitioners living in Delhi and the North-West Frontier Provinces can be registered under the Act if they fulfil the necessary conditions. As cases relating to such practitioners under sections 13 and 16 of the Act will come before the Punjab Medical Council it is considered desirable that the registered practitioners of those two provinces should also be represented on the Council. It is therefore proposed to amend the constitution of the Council so that there may be two representatives from the North-West Frontier Province and one representative from the Delhi Province. The appointments will be made by the Punjab Government on the recommendations of the Administrations concerned.

NOTES ON CLAUSES.

Clause 2—Enables the Local Government to confer the powers of a Deputy Commissioner on any other officer for the purposes of the Small Towns Act. In the new colonies (e. g., the Nili Bar Colony) it has been found desirable that such powers should be exercised by the Colonization Officer.

Clause 3—Is on the lines of sub-section (3) of section 13 of the Punjab Municipal Act, and sub-section (4) of section 12 of the Punjab District Boards Act, and will serve to avoid the inconvenience caused by the absence of a member during the interval between the completion of the term of an outgoing member and the election or appointment of a new member.

Clause 4—Is on the lines of section 15 of the Punjab Municipal Act and section 13 of the Punjab District Boards Act and makes provision for resignation of a member.

Clause 5—Enables a town fund to be kept in desposit in a Government treasury or sub-treasury at any place in the district in which the small town is situated. At present the town fund cannot be deposited in a Government treasury or sub-treasury at any place other than the small town, without the approval of the Local Government.

Clause 6—Excludes streets or roads in charge of the Public Works Department from the property vested in a town committee. Streets or roads in charge of the Public Works Department are important and most town committees are found to be indifferent towards the maintenance of roads. It is, therefore, not desirable that such streets or roads should vest in a town committee. The clauses given retrospective effect from 7th May 1923—the date on which the Small Town Act was brought into force—but rights lawfully acquired during the interval have been safeguarded.

Clause 7—Provides for recovery of the fee for a writ of demand along with postal charges.

Clause 8—A town committee has power to pass a general or special order to provide for the licensing of premises for the manufacture, preparation for sale, or sale of articles of food, (vide clause (p) of section 35 of the Small Towns Act), but has no power at present to license persons who sell articles of food. Such power has been found to be desirable where articles of food and drink are imported into a town from outside and sold by hawkers.

Clause 9—At present the Commissioner can only sanction or refuse to sanction a general order submitted to him. This clause empowers him to return it to the committee for further consideration.

The examination will be confined to candidates selected by a Selection Committee from those nominated by Deputy Commissioners or Political Agents, with reference to the conditions of eligibility stated below.

2. The syllabus for the examination is given as Appendix I.

3. Place of examination.—The examination will be conducted by the Public Services Commission with the Government of India and will be held in the Text Book Committee room in the office of the Director of Public Instruction at Lahore, commencing at 10 A.M. on the 17th January 1927.

4. Examination fee.—A fee of Rs. 5 is required from all candidates on submission of their applications to Deputy Commissioners or Political Agents for nomination. This fee must be paid by means of postage stamps of the specified amount affixed to the application. A further fee of Rs. 50 is to be paid in cash by candidates chosen for admission to the examination.

5. Number of appointments.—One candidate will be selected on the results of the competitive examination, provided he is found suitable in all respects for appointment to the Imperial Police.

6. Conditions of eligibility.—Every candidate must be a person domiciled in British India and born in British India of parents habitually resident in India and not established there for temporary purposes only.

He must, moreover, be a native of the Punjab, Delhi or Baluchistan or definitely settled in one of those Provinces.

A ruler or subject of a State in the Punjab in respect of whom the Governor-General in Council has made a declaration under section 96-A of the Government of India Act may be admitted to the examination.

(b) Every candidate must ordinarily be not less than 21 or more than 24 years of age on the 1st August 1926, but the Local Government may admit candidates of more than 19 and less than 21 years for special reasons.

(c) The minimum educational qualification is the possession of a University degree, but the Local Government may, in special cases, allow nomination of candidates who have passed the F. A. standard or the Cambridge Senior Examination, or the Diploma Examination from Chiefs Colleges in the first or second division.

(d) Candidates must be of respectable antecedents, and must submit references as to character and testimonials of good behaviour and of suitability for the Indian Police.

7. Form of application.—An application to compete at the examination must be made on a printed form (vide Appendix II) which may be obtained direct from the Inspector-General of Police, Punjab. A ruler or subject of a State in the Punjab should apply to that officer through his Darbar. No candidate shall make more than one application in any year. Applications must be forwarded, with necessary documents, to the Inspector-General of Police, through Deputy Commissioners, or, in the case of States' candidates, through their Political Agents, not later than the 31st October 1926.

9. Medical examination.—The successful candidate in the literary examination will be required shortly after the result of that examination is declared to undergo a strict examination by a Medical Board* (vide Appendix III) in Lahore, as to physique and capacity for active outdoor work. He will be required to pay a fee of Rs. 16 for such examination. Instructions as to the date and time of this examination will be issued to successful candidates by the Inspector-General of Civil Hospitals, Punjab.

10. Appointment of probationers.—The Secretary of State will nominate as a probationer the person who is selected or nominated by the Local Government.

11. Riding.—A knowledge of riding is not insisted on as an essential qualification before nomination. But the probationer will be subjected to a riding test at the termination of their probationary period; failure to pass this test will disqualify the candidate for confirmation in the service.

12. The successful candidate will be allotted as a probationer to the Punjab, Delhi or Baluchistan. The allotment will be subject to the right of the Government of India to make transfers in the interest of the public service.

13. (a) Uniform.—It is an ordinary condition of appointment that a successful candidate shall provide himself or be provided by his parents or guardians with his uniform or the cost thereof. The Government will make a contributory grant of a sum equivalent to £30 towards the cost of uniform.

(b) Horse and saddlery.—A successful candidate must when required to do so provide himself with a suitable horse and saddlery at his own expense. Government will make to a newly appointed officer a grant of a sum not exceeding Rs. 600 towards the cost of such horse and saddlery.

14. Salary.—A probationer will draw pay at the rate of Rs. 350 and Rs. 375 a month during the first and second years of probation, respectively, and on confirmation will draw pay according to the time-scale of pay sanctioned for the Indian Police Service. This is set out in Appendix IV.

15. Period of probation.—The probationer will be required to qualify by passing the necessary departmental examinations as well as the riding test (see rule 11) within two years of his selection.

16. Liability of probationers to removal.—Any probationer who may fail to pass the prescribed examination within two years, or be found unfit for Police duties, will be liable to removal from the service.

17. Promotion after probation.—No probationer will be entitled to confirmation until he has passed the prescribed departmental examinations, including the riding test.

18. Seniority.—A probationer recruited in India at this examination will be placed below the probationers recruited in the United Kingdom at the examination held in the preceding month of June, and probationers appointed from the same examination will be arranged in the order of passing the examination.

* In order to prevent parents and guardians from incurring the inconvenience and expense of preparing candidates who may be physically unfit for the Police Service, it is suggested that, before any such preparation is begun, candidates be submitted to examination by the medical adviser of the family, or any other qualified medical practitioner, with regard to the points which are indicated in Appendix III. It is to be understood that this private examination is merely suggested to lessen the chances of disappointment, and that it is by no means intended to take the place of, or to influence in any way, the official medical examination.

19. Leave, Pension and Provident Fund.—Officers joining the Indian Police under these conditions will find a summary of information regarding leave, pension and provident fund in Appendices V, VI and VII. Subscription to the provident fund is not compulsory in the case of Indians.

20. Article of agreement.—The probationer will be required to sign articles of agreement, describing the terms and conditions of his appointment before the appointment is made.

If a straight line stands on another straight line, the sum of the two angles so formed is equal to two right angles; and the converse.

If two straight lines intersect, the vertically opposite angles are equal.

Parallel straight lines.

When a straight line cuts two other straight lines, if—(i) a pair of alternate angles are equal, or (ii) a pair of corresponding angles are equal, or (iii) a pair of interior angles on the same side of the cutting line are together equal to two right angles, then the two straight lines are parallel; and the converse.

Straight lines which are parallel to the same straight line are parallel to one another.

Triangles and rectilineal figures.

The sum of the angles of a triangle is equal two right angles.

If the sides of convex polygon are produced in order the sum of the angles so formed is equal to four right angles.

If two triangles have two sides of the one equal to two sides of the other, each to each, and also the angles contained by these sides equal, the triangles are congruent.

If two triangles have two angles of the one equal to two angles of the other, each to each and also one side of the one equal to the corresponding side of other, the triangles are congruent.

If two sides of a triangle are equal, the angles opposite to these sides are equal; and the converse.

If two triangles have the three sides of the one equal to the three sides of the other, each to each, the triangles are congruent.

If two right-angled triangles have their hypotenuses equal, and one side of the one equal to one side of the other, the triangles are congruent.

If two sides of a triangle are unequal, the greater side has the greater angle opposite to it; and the converse.

Of all the straight lines that can be drawn to a given straight line from a given point outside it, the perpendicular is the shortest.

The opposite sides and angles of a parallelogram are equal; each diagonal bisects the parallelogram and the diagonals bisect one another.

If there are three or more parallel straight lines and the intercepts made by them on any straight line that cuts them are equal then the corresponding intercepts on any other straight line that cuts them are also equal.

Areas.

Parallelograms on the same or equal bases and of the same altitude are equal in area.

Triangles on the same or equal bases and of the same altitude are equal in area.

Equal triangles on the same or equal bases are of the same altitude.

Illustrations and explanations of the geometrical theorems corresponding to the following Algebraical identities :—

$k(a+b+c+.\quad)=ka+kb+kc+......$

$(a+b)^2=a^2+2ab+b^2.$

$(a-b)^2=a^2-2ab+b^2.$

$a^2-b^2=(a+b)\ (a-b).$

The square on a side of a triangle is greater than, equal to, or less than, the sum of the squares on the other two sides, according as the angle contained by those sides is obtuse, right, or acute. The difference in the case of inequality is twice the rectangle contained by one of the two sides and the projection on it of the other.

Loci.

The locus of a point which is equidistant from two fixed points is the perpendicular bisector of the straight line joining the two fixed points.

The locus of a point which is equidistant from two intersecting straight lines consists of the pair of straight lines which bisect the angles between the two given lines.

The Circle.

A straight line drawn from the centre of a circle to bisect a chord which is not the diameter is at right angles to the chord; conversely, the perpendicular to a chord from the centre bisects the chord.

There is one circle, and one only, which passes through three given points not in a straight line.

In equal circles (or in the same circle), (i) if two arcs subtend equal angles at the centres, they are equal; (ii) conversely, if two arcs are equal they subtend equal angles at the centres.

In equal circles (or in the same circle), (i) if two chords are equal, they cut off equal arcs; (ii) conversely, if two arcs are equal the chords of the arcs are equal.

Equal chords in a circle are equidistant from the centre; and the converse.

The tangents at any point of a circle and the radius through the point are perpendicular to one another.

If two circles touch the point of contact lies on the straight line through the centres.

The angle which an arc of a circle subtends at the centre is double that which it subtends at any point on the remaining part of the circumference.

Angles in the same segment of a circle are equal; and if the line joining two point subtends equal angle at two other points on the same side of it, the four points lie on a circle.

The angle in a semi-circle is a right angle, the angle in a segment greater than semi-circle is less than a right angle, and the angle in a segment less than a semi-circle is greater than a right angle.

The opposite angles of any quadrilateral inscribed in a circle are supplementary; and the converse.

If a straight line touch a circle and from the point of contract a chord be drawn, the angles which this chord makes with the tangent are equal to the angle in the alternate segment.

If two chords of a circle intersect either inside or outside the circle, the rectangle contained by the parts of the one is equal to the rectangle contained by the parts of the other.

Proportion ; Similar Triangles.

If a straight line is drawn parallel to one side of a triangle, the other two sides are divided proportionally; and the converse.

If two triangles are equiangular, their corresponding sides are proportional; and the converse.

If two triangles have one angle of the one equal to one angle of the other and the sides about these angles proportional, the traingles are similar.

In any right-angled triangles the perpendicular to the hypotenuse from opposite vertex divides the triangle into two triangles which are similar to the whole triangle and to each other.

The internal bisector of an angle of a triangle divides the opposite side internally in the ratio of the sides containing the angle and likewise the external bisector externally.

The ratio of the areas of similar triangles is equal to the ratio of the squares on corresponding sides.

APPENDIX III.

EXTRACT FROM THE REGULATIONS AS TO THE PHYSICAL EXAMINATION OF CANDIDATES FOR APPOINTMENTS UNDER THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

[These Regulations are published for the convenience of candidates and in order to enable them to ascertain the probability of their coming up to the required physical standard. But it must be clearly understood that the Secretary of State reserves to himself an absolute discretion to reject as unfit any candidate whom he may consider, after having the opinion of his medical advisers, to be physically disqualified for the public service: and that his discretion is in no respect limited by these Regulations.]

N. B.—As regards candidates who have been wounded, a candidate who has lost one hand, fore-arm, or arm, or one leg below the knee might be accepted, but the following classes of wounds must be regarded as disqualifications, viz., (1) injury to head; (2) loss of an eye; (3) loss of leg above or through the knee.

GENERAL PHYSICAL REQUIREMENTS.

I. A candidate must be in good mental and bodily health, and free from any physical defect likely to interfere with efficient performance of duty.

II. Measurements will be recorded of the candidates' height and chest girth.

III. Measurement of Height.—A minimum height of 5 ft. 4 ins. is imposed. The candidate will be placed against the standard with his feet together, and the weight thrown on the heels, and not on the toes or outside of the feet. He will stand erect without rigidity, and with the heels, calves, buttocks and shoulders touching the standard; the chin will be depressed to bring the vertex of the head level under the horizontal bar and the height will be noted in parts of an inch to eights.

IV. Measurement of Chest.—The candidate will be made to stand erect with his feet together, and to raise his hands above his head. The tape will be carefully adjusted round the chest, and with its posterior upper edge touching the inferior angles of the shoulder blades, and its anterior lower edge the upper part of the nipples. The arms will then be lowered to hang loosely by the side, and care will be taken that the shoulders are not thrown upwards or backwards so as to displace the tape. The candidate will then be directed to empty his chest of air as much as is possible. This is best done by continuous whistling with the lips as long as sound can be produced. The tape is carefully gathered in during the process, and when the minimum measurement is reached it is recorded. The candidate will then be directed to inflate his chest to its utmost capacity. The maximum measurement will likewise be noted. The girth with the chest fully expanded and the range of expansion between the minimum and maximum will then be recorded.

V. The candidate's weight will be taken and recorded in pounds.

VI. (A) The examination for determining the acuteness of vision includes two tests, one for distant, the other for near vision. Snellen's test types will be used for the test for distant vision, without glasses, at a distance of 20 feet, and for the test for near vision without glasses, at any distance selected by the candidate. The standards of the minimum acuteness of vision which will be used for guidance in the examination of a candidate are as follows:—

STANDARD I.

Distance vision—	V=6/6.	V=6/6.
Near vision—	Reads 0, 6.	Reads 0, 6.

STANDARD II.

	Better eye.	Worse eye.
Distant vision—	V=6/6.	V, without glasses=not below 6/60; and after correction with glasses=not below 6/24.
Near vision—	Reads 0, 6.	Reads 1.

STANDARD III.

	Better eye.	Worse eye.
Distant vision—	V, without glasses=not below 6/24*; and after correction with glasses=not below 6/6.	V, without glasses=not below 6/24*; and after correction with glasses=not below 6/12.
Near vision—	Reads 0, 8.	Reads 1.

*Temporarily lowered to 6/60

(B) Each eye must have a full field of vision as tested by hand movements.

(C) Squint or any morbid condition of the eyes or of the lids of either eye liable to the risk of aggravation or recurrence, will cause the rejection of the candidate.

(D) Each eye will be examined separately and the lids must be kept wide open during the test.

(E) Inability to distinguish the principal colours will not be regarded as a cause for rejection, but the fact will be noted in the proceedings and the candidate will be informed.

(F) The degree of acuteness of vision of all candidates for appointments will be entered in the proceedings in the following manner :—

V. R. = ———————; with glasses = ————; Reads ————

V. L. = ———————; with glasses = ————; Reads ————

(G) In cases of serious abnormality the opinion of an opthalmic specialist should be obtained.

VII. The urine (passed in presence of the examiner) should be examined and the result recorded.

VIII. The following additional points should be observed :—

(a) that the candidate's hearing in each ear is good, and that there is no sign of disease of the ear ;

(b) that his speech is without impediment ;

(c) that his teeth are in good order ; that he is provided with dentures where necessary for effective mastication (well filled teeth will be considered as sound) ; and that he is free from pyorrhœ or other morbid conditions of the mouth or gums ;

(d) that his chest is well formed and his chest expansion sufficient, and that his heart and lungs are sound ;

(e) that there is no evidence of any abdominal disease ;

(f) that he is not ruptured ;

(g) that he does not suffer from hydrocele, a severe degreee of varicocele, varicose veins or piles ;

(h) that his limbs, hands and feet are well formed and developed, and that there is free and perfect motion of all his joints ;

(i) that he does not suffer from any inveterate skin disease ;

(j) that there is no congenital malformation or defect ;

(k) that he does not bear traces of acute or chronic disease pointing to an impaired constitution ;

(l) that he bears marks of efficient vaccination.

When any defect is found it must be noted in the certificate and the medical examiner should state his opinion whether or not it is likely to interfere with the efficient performance of the duties which will be required of the candidate. If the condition is remediable by operation it should be so stated.

 In six or any earlier year in which officers may come under Senior Scale.*

† Officers recruited at the competitive examinations held in the United Kingdom count service for increments of pay from the date of reporting arrival in India, or from 1st November of the year of appointment, whichever is the earlier, provided that the officer reports his arrival in India not later than the 31st December of that year. APPENDIX V.

[Notes.—Appendices V and VI are merely intended to show the principal leave and pension rules at present applicable to the Indian (Imperial) Police Service without going into minute details, and do not profess to deal with every case that may arise. The rules are subject to alteration, and any disputed question must be decided with reference to the authorised text of the Fundamental Rules in the case of leave, and of the Civil Service Regulations in the case of pensions for the time being.]

ORDINARY LEAVE RULES FOR OFFICERS POSSESSING NON-EUROPEAN DOMICILE

I.

Leave is calculated in terms of "leave on average pay" and the amount of "leave on average pay" for which an officer is eligible is $\frac{6}{11}$ ths of the period spent on duty.

Subject to certain maxima and minima and to the limitation noted below, an officer may draw, at his option, leave salary equal to the average pay of the last 12 months of completed duty or to half such average pay. All leave on average and half the period on half average pay is counted against the leave earned. An officer may take his leave on average pay or half average pay, or on a combination of the two, provided that his continuous absence from duty does not exceed 28 months, and that the amount of leave taken on average pay does not exceed four months at any one time. The maximum amount of leave admissible during an officer's career expressed in terms of leave on average pay for 2½ years plus $\frac{1}{11}$th of the period spent on duty of which not more than $\frac{1}{11}$th of the period spent on duty may actually consist of leave on average pay.

II.—GENERAL.

Leave not due and carrying half average pay may be granted on medical certificate and within certain limits, for other reasons, but an officer will not again commence to earn leave until the expiration of a fresh period of duty sufficient to earn a credit of leave equal to the leave he has taken before it was due. After 28 months' absence from duty an officer of the Indian Imperial Police Service draws quarter average salary subject to certain maxima and minima.

Leave salary is ordinarily payable in rupees if the officer spends his leave in India or Ceylon, and in sterling if he spends it elsewhere. The rate of exchange for the conversion of leave salary is prescribed from time to time by the Secretary of State. At present it is the current rate of exchange subject to a minimum of 1*s.* 4*d.* during the first four months of leave and 1*s.* 6*d.* during the remainder.

It should be noted that leave can never be claimed as of right, but is given or refused at the discretion of Government.

APPENDIX VI—(See Note at commencement of Appendix V.)

PENSIONS.

1. The following is the summary of the pension rules applicable to officers of the Indian (Imperial) Police Service appointed by the Secretary of State from the United Kingdom.

2. Subject to the absolute right, which will not ordinarily be exercised, of the Government of India to decline to permit any officer to retire before reaching the age for superannuation, should it be necessary in the public interest to retain his services, officers will be allowed to retire optionally after twenty-five or more years' service.

3. Retirement is ordinarily required at the age of 55 years, but for special reasons an officer is sometimes retained after attaining that age.

4. An officer becomes eligible for full retiring pension on completing 30 years' qualifying service.

5. If before completing this period of service an officer is permitted to retire voluntarily after completion of 25 or more years' qualifying service (paragraph 2) or is compelled to retire on attaining the age of 55 (paragraph 3), or through ill-health not occasioned by irregular or intemperate habits, he will be eligible for a pension on the following scales or, if invalided with less than 7 years' qualifying service, for a gratuity.

6. The amount of pension or gratuity is regulated as follows:—

(a) Retiring and superannuation pension—

Completed years of qualifying service.	Sixtieths of average emoluments.	Maximum limit of pension.
		Rs.
25	25	6,000 a year.

27	30 " "	6,400 "
28	30 " "	6,600 "
29	30 " "	6,800 "

Average emoluments are calculated over the last three years of service.

Pensions drawn in the United Kingdom are converted into sterling at a minimum rate of exchange of 1s. 9d. the rupee.

7. Government may retire any officer after he has completed 25 years' service without giving reasons, and without admitting any claim to compensation in addition to pension. In that event the pension admissible to him will ordinarily be regulated on a scale not exceeding that laid down above. The rights reserved to Government under this rule will not be exercised except when it is in the public interest to dispense with the further services of an officer. Government also reserves the general power to reduce the pension ordinarily admissible in all cases where an officer's service has been unsatisfactory.

ADDITIONAL PENSION.

8. The Government of India have classified certain high appointments into two grades, the lower comprising those posts which involve high but intermediate responsibility, the higher consisting of those which require a marked degree of independent administrative and professional capacity. Officers who have held appointments in the lower grade may be granted an additional pension at the rate of Rs. 300 per year for each completed year of effective service in any appointment included in that grade, provided that no officer may draw an additional pension in excess of Rs. 1,500 in respect of service classed in the lower grade. Officers who have held appointments classed in the upper grade will be entitled to an additional pension at the rate of Rs. 500 for each completed year of effective service rendered in any appointment included in that grade, provided that no officer may draw an additional pension in excess of Rs. 2,500 in respect of service rendered in the lower and upper grades combined or in the upper grade alone.

9. These additional pensions will be awarded only to officers who have given proof of special energy and efficiency, and will be subject to the condition that an officer must in the event of voluntary retirement have completed 28 years' qualifying service.

The upper grade includes :—

Inspector-General of Police (except Inspector-General, Railway Police, Rajputana)

Director, Central Intelligence Department.

Commissioners of Police, Calcutta and Bombay.

The lower grade includes :—

Inspector General, Railway Police, Rajputana.

Deputy Inspectors-General of Police.

Commissioners of Police, Madras and Rangoon.

Superintendents of Police, in the Selection Grades.

Deputy Director, Central Intelligence Department.

APPENDIX VII.

PROVIDENT FUND.

A General Provident Fund, to which contribution is compulsory in the case of Anglo-Indians or Domiciled Europeans and optional in the case of Indians has also been established on the following basis :—

(1) The contribution is compulsory up to 6¼ per cent. on salaries, with voluntary contributions of not more than a further 9⅜ per cent Subscriptions on leave of any kind are optional.

(2) Compound interest on such payments is annually credited by Government to each officer subscribing.

(3) The sum which thus accumulates to the credit of an officer is his absolute property, subject to the rules of the fund, and is handed over to him, unconditionally, on quitting the service ; or in the event of his death before retirement, to his legal representatives or such other person or persons as under and subject to the rules of the fund for the time being in force may be entitled thereto.

No. 29223.—The following is published for general information : -

Extracts from the Report of the Punjab Provincial Police Committee.

Part I.

CHAPTER I.

INTRODUCTORY.

1. In compliance with the instructions contained in Punjab Government letter No. 24717-H.—Police, dated the 12th November, 1925, the Committee have made their enquiry into the matters referred to them and now beg to submit their report.

2. The terms of reference were as follows :—

(a) To consider the existing Police establishments of each district and of the Railway Police and to report if they are sufficient for the duties they are called upon to perform. To make proposals for increase or reduction where such appear necessary or feasible.

(b) To make suggestions regarding possible reductions in the duties now allotted to the Police, e.g., in service of processes, escorts over treasure, etc.

(c) To examine the question of the protection afforded in towns and cantonments where Police are now employed, and to make any recommendations that seem called for in reference to the substitution of Police for town watchmen in other towns.

(d) To consider the adequacy of the 15 per cent. reserve and to ascertain if it suffices to provide for ordinary casualties due to leave, sickness, vacancies, etc.

(e) To examine and report regarding means for improving the efficiency and integrity of the Police force.

To these terms a further reference was added regarding the recent amendments to sections 157 and 161 of the Criminal Procedure Code as the question was under consideration whether any one below the rank of head constable should be allowed to investigate. The Committee was directed to consider this matter also and the necessity of additions to the strength of head constables if officers below that rank were so debarred from investigating.

3. Mr. Lumsden was not available to take over charge of his duties as President of the Committee until the 27th January, 1926, on the completion of his work in connection with the Jails Enquiry Committee. Sardar Sikandar Hyat Khan also joined the Committee on the 27th January. Mr. Cocks took over charge of his special duty as a member of the Committee on the 27th October, 1925, being joined by Lala Gauri Dyal, Secretary, on the 10th November, 1925. From the 30th October to the 21st December, 1925, Mr. Cocks performed in addition the duties of Deputy Inspector-General, Criminal Investigation Department, and took over charge as Inspector-General in addition to his duty on the Committee from the 5th April, 1926. Before beginning the work of the Committee in October he had, as officiating Inspector-General of Police, called upon all Superintendents of Police in Districts to submit their estimates, framed on economical lines, of the Police requirements of their charges and to support their estimates with the details of the area of jurisdictions, the numbers of processes served, the average crime dealt with, the distances of thanas from railways and from courts of Magistrates. Pending the actual assembling of the Committee Mr. Cocks and Lala Gauri Dyal visited more than half the districts of the Province and discussed their proposals with the Police officers in charge of those districts.

4. Since the end of January the Committee as a whole had also visited more than half the districts of the Province to obtain the views of local officers and local non-official gentlemen. All non-official members of the Legislative Council were invited to favour us with their views as to (e) and sixteen of them volunteered to appear before the Committee and were duly examined. In addition a certain number of such members furnished us with written statements. The opinions of three of the five Commissioners of Divisions, of the Inspector-General of Police (Sir Lionel Tomkins) and his four Deputy Inspectors-General and of the Deputy Commissioners of all Districts, except Simla, Rohtak, Jhang, Mianwali and Muzaffargarh, have been recorded. In addition the Superintendents of Police of 21 districts gave us their advice at personal interviews and 71 non-official gentlemen, representative of different districts, favoured us with their views. They included members of the legal and other professions, land-owners, members of local bodies, pensioners from Government service, both civil and military and others to whom order and security are of moment. The Deputy Commissioners of Jhang and Muzaffargarh had but recently taken charge of those districts and were not in a position to offer opinions regarding their requirements while no opportunity presented itself of meeting the Deputy Commissioners of the other three districts named. We desire to express our cordial appreciation of the valuable assistance given to us by the non-official gentlemen we examined, who placed their knowledge and experience at the disposal of Government with an obvious desire to help us towards a wise decision on the problems referred to us.

CHAPTER II.

CONSIDERATION OF THE ADEQUACY OF PRESENT POLICE ESTABLISHMENTS AND QUESTIONS CONNECTED THEREWITH.

5. Of the terms of reference the items (a) and (d) and the first portion of (c) refer to the adequacy or otherwise of the existing sanctioned Police establishments and, while our estimates have been framed with regard to the particular conditions of each district and branch of the force after studying those conditions in conjunction with the officers concerned and with residents of those districts, it has been possible for us to apply certain principles in arriving at our figures. We have confined our recommendations to the force as it is at present distributed, avoiding anything in the way of radical alteration, except that we have, in the few cases where the necessity for so doing was apparent, suggested the abolition of existing thanas or the creation of new ones. The district statements contain references to certain special considerations on which we base our calculations and the general principles followed may with advantage be detailed here. The question of substitution by Police of town watchmen in small towns is one regarding which the views of official bodies of the towns concerned and of district officers have influenced our decisions. The portions of the force with which the general public is brought into the closest contact are those concerned with the prevention and detection of offences, while the adequacy or otherwise of the reserves is a matter on which the opinions of officers of the department supported by statistics are the only safe guides. There is apparently almost complete unanimity, both among officials and non-officials, that the present investigating agency is insufficient in numbers and that much of the reluctance displayed by rural Police to register and enquire into cases reported to them, and much of the cavalier or unmannerly treatment so often meted out to complainants who seek the assistance of the Police, is due to the fact that many thanas in the Province have a larger burden of work than they can adequately tackle. The Police Commission of 1902-03 considered that the normal thana should have an average of 100 cases a year and an area of some 150 square miles, and that the Sub-Inspector in charge should be able to deal with the bulk of these cases, relegating to head constables only those cases which are of trifling importance and seriousness. The staff of this standard thana fixed in this Province consists of one Sub-Inspector, two head constables and 10 constables of whom one head constable and one constable are employed on the scriptory work of the thana. Our enquiries show that this standard calls for revision; that the Sub-Inspector in charge of such a thana, compelled as he is by rule to investigate practically every case himself, is unable to devote sufficient attention to individual cases; that he has no leisure to supervise and control his subordinates; that he spends his whole time either out in his jurisdiction making these investigations or in headquarters watching the prosecution of the cases he manages to work out and send for trial; and that his chances of successfully working out cases and his opportunities of paying adequate attention to the surveillance of known criminals and to the question of prevention of offences are reduced to a minimum. We are compelled to the conclusion that only in the lightest thanas in law-abiding tracts is a force of 10 constables really sufficient and that the normal thana with 150 square miles of area that registers 75 cases a year provides ample work for two investigating officers with a head constable clerk and a staff of 12 constables. For every 50 cases in excess of the normal 75 a year an extra investigating officer is needed while in jurisdictions with a much larger area or situated remote from the railway and from the Courts of Magistrates, such as are to be found in many, if not in most, of the districts of the Province, this extra staff is necessary even if the figures of crime do not touch the level mentioned. We are also of opinion that too rigid insistence on the Sub-Inspector personally taking up all cases, serious or petty, "ab initio" is a mistake. We recommend that he should be permitted deliberately to depute a subordinate officer to enquire into cases reported that do not appear to be serious and that his failure to proceed personally at once to the scene of an offence reported while he is present in the thana should not be considered, as at present, neglect of an obvious duty necessitating explanation and tempting him to invent fictitious excuses of indisposition or of other important work. It should be recognised that his duties of supervision and surveillance of his subordinates and of his jurisdiction, are highly important and necessitate the spending of a reasonable portion of his time inside the thana or outside in the jurisdiction free from the cares of the investigation of a case. It is anomalous to give such an officer the very extensive powers he now possesses and yet refuse him the liberty to discriminate.

6. Our opinion regarding the subsidiary reference made to us is that officers below the rank of head constable should not be permitted to make an investigation into a cognizable offence however trivial in character. At the same time we realise that the ideal aimed at by the Police Commission of 1902-03 is not at present possible of attainment: the provision of a sufficient number of officers of the rank of Sub-Inspector to ensure that all but the most trifling offences dealt with by the Police shall be investigated by a Sub-Inspector is not a practicable proposition at the moment. So long as the staffs of thanas are fixed on a basis dictated by economy cases are bound to occur, and to occur frequently, where there is no officer available to take up a case when it is first reported, and we believe that any rigid prohibition of action by officers below any fixed rank would be likely to cause serious inconvenience. It is easily conceivable that a murder might be reported at a time when all officers posted to the thana were already engaged in work away from their headquarters, the Sub-Inspector, for example, giving evidence in court many miles away and the head constable busy with the pursuit of a gang of dacoits; and it is just as easily conceivable that any delay in the arrival on the scene of the murder of some Police officer or other would have disastrous effects on the case. There is no definition in the Code of Criminal Procedure of what constitutes "investigation" but we cannot hold that the visit of a subordinate Police officer to the scene of an offence and the prevention by him of the destruction of evidence pending the arrival of an officer of higher rank who will undertake the formal enquiry does not amount to investigation. It seems to us essential that every Police officer should be empowered to take that preliminary action and for this reason we are convinced that it would not be to the public good to deprive constables of their legal powers of investigation. The intention of the legislature is undoubtedly to secure that cases shall be investigated by officers above the rank of constable and we consider that this intention can be met by executive orders to the effect that no constable shall be deputed to investigate any offence so long as there is a superior officer available and that, where from necessity a constable is so deputed, arrangements shall be made to relieve him as soon as possible.

7. There is no question that it is on the improvement of the investigating agency and of their methods that every effort should be concentrated if the Police are to win any reasonable measure of public confidence. The abuses complained of are almost entirely concerned with misuse of their powers by investigating officers. That there is no public antagonism to the Police as a body is evidenced by the absolute unanimity with which all our witnesses, official and non-official, have recommended emphatically that town watchmen in small towns should everywhere be substituted by regular enrolled Police. We have been told even by members of committees of Municipalities and Small Towns that a Police watch and ward is preferable in every way, the efficiency of a disciplined force being contrasted with the hopeless ineptitude of most of the watchmen under the control of local bodies. We have heard with regret that the anticipation of the Police Commission, that direct recruitment in the officers' rank of Sub-Inspector would revolutionise the methods of the investigating staff, purifying them of all the old vices with which the subordinate ranks are irretrievably imbued, has not been realised, the modern directly appointed Sub-Inspector being far too often both less competent than his forerunner and more extortionate. The opinion of those best qualified to judge is that there should be a revision of the system of recruitment now in force, direct appointments to the rank of Sub-Inspector being largely reduced and those in the rank of head constable correspondingly increased. The directly appointed head constable with a year's training in the Phillaur Training School and a few years practical experience followed by a further short course in the Upper School at Phillaur is, to the best of our information, the most promising material we have and it is material from which investigating officers can be selected with the danger of mistakes reduced to a minimum. The recommendation which has been made to us, and of which we would urge the adoption, is that an intermediate rank of officers be created between the Sub-Inspector and the head constable, such officers to be called Assistant Sub-Inspectors and to be employed as subordinate investigating officers in thanas. Into this rank should be promoted, and this rapidly, those head constables who show that they are likely to make good officers in charge of police stations and from this rank should be selected all those Sub-Inspectors who are appointed by promotion and not directly. This method will facilitate selection ; it will enable officers to choose men who have given evidence that they have the necessary ability to do the work of a thanadar and, what is of greater importance, that they possess the character to do that work without alienating the sympathy of respectable members of society by their methods. The value of the proposed slight improvement in the status of this subordinate investigating agency is of no small moment : the Assistant Sub-Inspector would be an officer who had risen to that rank by proof of his fitness for it but who still had before him, as an incentive to continue his good work, the hope of promotion to the rank of Sub-Inspector. In assessing requirements in districts we have, except in one or two of the larger cities where the Police force is split up into separate divisions, proposed the reduction of all junior Sub-Inspectors, allowing all the subordinate investigating staff this proposed new rank of Assistant Sub-Inspector.

8. In most districts the headquarters' pay officer is at present of the rank of head constable and we have reason to believe that the accounts system of a district is now of so complex a character that this rank of officer does not provide sufficient inducement for accountants with the requisite knowledge and training. As a result cases of mis-handling of public money have been of late unduly frequent and we are of opinion that the time has come to employ in district offices, for all clerical duties other than those directly concerned with crime and criminal statistics, clerks and accountants separately recruited for these duties. It is therefore desirable, we think, to extend the ministerial establishment that now exists in the offices of the Inspector-General and of Deputy Inspectors-General to the English branch of each district police office, English clerks and pay officers being entertained as part of this ministerial cadre. The details of this change will require careful consideration if the proposal is generally approved and we have not had the opportunity of giving them that consideration. We have contented ourselves with the provision in the proposed district establishments of an officer of the rank of Sub-Inspector for the duty of pay officer in those districts where that duty is now performed by a head constable and have reduced the provision for the reader of the Superintendent of Police in districts from the rank of Sub-Inspector to that of Assistant Sub-Inspector. In effect we have, therefore, simply suggested the replacement in the establishment of a head constable by an Assistant Sub-Inspector but we would urge that a scheme involving the substitution of the present clerks in English offices, who are enrolled Police officers, by members of a ministerial cadre enlisted and trained as such should be examined with a view to adoption.

9. The European element in the Provincial Police at the present consists of 10 Deputy Superintendents, 30 Inspectors and 39 Sergeants. Enlistments for this portion of the force are made in the rank of European Sergeant and, there being no separate reserve for this portion of the force, the reserve on all Deputy Superintendents, Inspectors, Sergeants and Sub-Inspectors being in the rank of Sub-Inspector, recruits in the subordinate European ranks are from the first required to enter on their duties at once without preliminary training. From time to time, it is true, certain of these officers have been sent to undergo a period of training at the Training School but the bulk have been left to pick up their knowledge in somewhat the same manner as that favoured by Mr. Squeers for his pupils. The result is that many of these officers lack the necessary theoretical groundwork that is essential to the efficient discharge of their duties and we consider that a radical change in this system is necessary. We recommend that these European and Anglo-Indian appointments be considered separately for the purposes of calculating a reserve and that all recruits to this branch be treated in the same manner as probationary Sub-Inspectors, being sent to the Training School on enlistment and required to undergo the same course as that laid down for Sub-Inspectors and Inspectors. There is in each year's term at the School one class of probationary Sub-Inspectors which receives instruction and takes the examination in the English language and the new recruits to the European subordinate service should be required to join this class and to qualify, being thereafter posted on probation in the same manner as the ordinary directly appointed Sub-Inspector.

10. Our enquiries have shown us that the 15 per cent. casualty reserve is everywhere insufficient. Many of the faults most frequently complained of in the subordinate ranks of the force are undoubtedly due to deficient training and, under present conditions, much improvement is hardly to be expected. The casualty reserve provides a 14 per cent. reserve of Sub-Inspectors on the number of officers of the rank of Deputy Superintendents, Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors sanctioned for definite fixed duties and 15 per cent. of constables on the total number of head constables and constables similarly fixed. We find that leave has at all times to be given with a sparing, even niggardly, hand; that where duties are heavy many men receive insufficient leave or leisure, while training has to be reduced to a minimum, the recruit being rushed through a perfunctory training in drill and being drafted to his duties as a constable with practically nothing in the way of instruction regarding his powers and responsibilities or his duties to the public as a servant of that public. In like manner the directly appointed Sub-Inspector is, more often than not, called upon to accept responsibilities and to undertake tasks for which he has received insufficient instructions and for which he lacks experience. His period of probation in a district after he has completed his training at the Training School finds him called upon to accept independent charge of a post the duties of which he should be learning to perform under the supervision of senior and experienced officers. The inadequacy of reserve for training, leave, etc., tends to be emphasised by the facts that there is no reserve in the rank of head constable and, in districts where duties are heavy and leave has to be withheld, men resign their appointments more readily, recruits are less easy to obtain, and the incidence of vacant appointments becomes heavier. That the need of a reserve of head constables has already been felt appears from the creation in every district of lance head constables. These officers are actually a reserve of head constables; they number 600, or 20 per cent. of the total number of head constables, and they are taken from the reserve in the rank of constables which is calculated as shown above on the total number of head constables and constables. The result is that the reserve of head constables, which has been found to be needed, is provided at a higher rate than necessary and at the expense of a reserve of constables which is already inadequate. In view of our recommendation that direct recruitment in the rank of head constables should be largely increased, we are of opinion that this necessary reserve of head constables should be provided and we have, therefore, calculated our reserves as follows: —

In the rank of Sergeant, we have allowed a reserve of seven appointments or 10 per cent. of the number of European Inspectors (29) and Sergeants (39); in that of Sub-Inspector, we have calculated a reserve at 15 per cent. on the sanctioned number of Indian Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors; in the rank of head constable, a similar reserve on the number of Assistant Sub-Inspectors and head constables; and in the rank of constable of 17·5 per cent. of the number of constables sanctioned for fixed duties.

11. The Police Commission of 1902-03 calculated that a 15 per cent. reserve was probably sufficient though they admitted that the statistics they had before them were perhaps an insufficient basis for accurate calculation. When they estimated the forces of each province they made their calculations of the reserve at this figure of 15 per cent. but they added a reserve of 15 per cent. on that reserve. Thus a force with 500 head constables and constables was allotted a reserve of 75 constables plus a reserve of 11 constables on that reserve of 75 men, making a total of 86 men and a percentage of 17·2. In this Province, the simpler method of calculating at 17·5 per cent. of fixed duties was adopted and the reserves remained at this figure until recently when, in order to provide for increases in pay which could no longer be withheld, the numbers of the force were reduced by cutting down the reserve to 15 per cent. Our investigations show that the original figure of 17·5 per cent. is probably just adequate in most districts; it is nowhere extravagant, and we have therefore adopted this figure in estimating requirements.

12. In every district the Deputy Commissioner is given a Police guard of one head constable and 4 constables and a Police constable as a bicycle orderly. We are of opinion that, while it is desirable to provide the Deputy Commissioner with a Police sentry over his house at night, there is no necessity to furnish him with a policeman as a bicycle orderly whose work can be done equally well and more cheaply by a chaprassi, and we have therefore reduced the provision for these items to three constables in each district, enough to furnish a sentry at night over the Deputy Commissioner's residence. Other Police bicycle orderlies are provided to Commissioners and, in Lahore, to the Chief Secretary and His Excellency the Governor. We are of opinion that these should not be furnished to extra departmental officers who should replace them by chaprassis supplied with bicycles.

13. The Police Rules 12·5 et seq prescribe a headquarters school in the Lines in charge of a well-qualified Police officer where the training, which is admittedly so necessary and at present so deficient, is to be imparted. We find that this provision fails not only because the paucity of reserve makes anything in the way of adequate training impossible but also because a qualified officer as instructor is not available for this duty. We consider that definite provision for such an officer should be made and have included an Assistant Sub-Inspector in the Lines establishment of each district for the purpose.

14. The mounted Police of the Province consist at present of four troops of camel sowars, each composed of one head constable and 11 constables, allotted to the districts of Hissar, Ferozepore, Jhang and Dera Ghazi Khan, and of five troops of horse sowars, four of the strength of one Sub-Inspector, two head constables and 22 sowars in Lahore Amritsar, Dera Ghazi Khan and Rawalpindi and one troop of one Sub-Inspector, five head constables and 39 sowars in Mianwali. While we are of opinion that the concentration in troops of the men mounted on horses has proved useful and has tended to better training we are not convinced that the troops of camel sowars, except in Ferozepore where they have been used for the purpose of pursuing gangs of dacoits operating in the desert portions of the district, are worth retention. We believe that these camel sowars could more profitably be employed in those thanas where distances are great and where the conditions are suitable for camels, foot constables being proportionately reduced in number. There are thanas situated in the Thal portions of Muzaffargarh, Dera Ghazi Khan, Mianwali, etc., where a constable with a camel can perform twice the amount of work (e.g., process-serving) that a foot constable can overtake.

15. We have not felt called upon to discuss the strength of office extablishments but we desire to mention that a note on the proposed reorganisation of the Central Police Office was placed before us. It is clear that the work of the office has increased while the strength of the staff has not been proportionately augmented. The case for a revision of the strength of the office establishment and an improvement in the status of its senior members appears to be a strong one and deserving of the sympathetic consideration of Government.

16. It is germane to the question of the adequacy or otherwise of the Police establishment of the Province to compare the cost of the Police forces in the different major provinces and the relations that cost bears to the general revenue of each province. The figures below have been obtained from the latest administration reports available :—

Year 1924.

Province.	Expenditure on Police in lakhs.	Total Revenue in lakhs.	Percentage of Police expenditure to revenue.	Percentage of Police expenditure to total expenditure.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Bengal	1,77	10,13	17·47	18·1
Madras	2,00	16,47	12·14	12·41
Bombay	1,66	14,52	11·4	11·66
Punjab	1,09	10,21	10·67	11·13
Burma	1,41	9,22	15·29	14·85
United Provinces	1,59	12,71	12·51	12·32
Central Provinces ..	56	5,39	10·4	10·85
Assam	23	2,26	10·17	11·16

When the character of the population of the Province is considered, and its position in relation to the North-West Frontier, the cost of the Police establishment cannot be considered excessive. The only two provinces which spend rather less proportionately than the Punjab are the Central Provinces and Assam. In the former the amount of serious crime compares favourably with that in the Punjab: murders 237 against 748 and dacoities 97 against 323. In the latter the population is more law-abiding: cases returned as true being in the ratio of one to every 900 persons whereas in this Province the figure is one to every 600. Moreover, if the Revised Estimates for the Province 1925-26 are taken the figures are even more favourable :—

Expenditure on Police.	Total revenue.	Total expenditure.	Percentage on revenue.	Percentage on expenditure.
Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1,06	11,15	10,39	9·54	10·2

Apart from the question of the substitution by Police of town watchmen in all towns with a population exceeding 5,000 the ultimate extra cost of our proposals is roughly Rs. 22 lakhs or a percentage of 11·4 per cent. on the revenue as set forth in the revised estimates.

CHAPTER III.

DISCUSSION ON THE MISCELLANEOUS DUTIES NOW PERFORMED BY THE POLICE.

17. The second term of reference to the Committee is to make suggestions regarding possible reductions in the duties allotted to the Police, e.g., in service of processes, escorts over treasure, etc. Our enquiries have shown that anything very radical in the way of reduction of duties now allotted to the Police is not readily feasible. The necessity of employing this agency for the service of processes, at any rate in all cognizable cases dealt with by the Police, has been impressed upon us by all classes of witnesses, Magistrates, members of the legal profession and others, in order that the speedy disposal of cases may be secured. In non-cognizable cases and in congizable cases taken up on complaint by Magistrates suo motu the civil processes-serving agency can, and should, be used, but in Police cases it is agreed that speedy disposal is a matter of the highest importance and that service of processes by the Police makes for such speed. In Campbellpur the experiment has been tried of using the post-office for the purpose of service of processes in complaint cases and we were told that it has proved most successful. The experiment might well be tried in other than complaint cases and elsewhere than in the Attock District seeing that the burden of this duty is steadily increasing. In connection with this duty it was brought to our notice that, in many districts, Magistrates have adopted the practice of summoning the several witnesses in a case merely by issuing one letter to the thanadar concerned, calling upon him to serve the notice on the different individuals noted in the letter and to take their signatures or thumb-impressions in token of such service. This slip-shod method should, we think, be definitely forbidden and Magistrates directed to issue separate summonses in the name of each individual whose attendance is required.

18. Similarly it is obvious that, apart from the Police, no other suitable agency exists for the purpose of escorting prisoners from one jail to another or from jails and judicial lock-ups to Courts. In all countries this is the agency used and we are unable to suggest any change of importance. There would seem to be room for improvements in details, however, the principal one being the desirability of making the fullest use of rapid means of transport wherever they are available. It is not only an unnecessary hardship on prisoners but also economically unsound to march them long distances by road, under a necessarily heavy Police escort, when by the use of motor transport the journey can be performed in a portion of the time and under a small guard. The saving of escort and time will more than justify any extra expenditure.

19. In the case of transfers of convicted prisoners from one jail to another we believe that something in the way of relief can be afforded. In order to reduce the number of escorts which have to be provided, arrangement should, as far as possible, be made to transfer such prisoners in large batches. Under existing orders (Jail Manual S. 742) moreover there are numerous classes of prisoners who are transferred before release to the jail of their home districts, or to the nearest jail to their homes in the case of non-residents of the Province or in the case of residents of districts where there is no jail. Each such transfer necessitates the employment of a Police escort who may have to travel considerable distances and return empty handed. Except in the case of P. R. T. convicts resident in the Punjab, of P. R. or P. R. T. convicts who hail from other provinces and of members of criminal tribes, we are of opinion that these expensive arrangements are unnecessary. So far as ordinary pr soners are concerned it should be sufficient to purchase tickets to the railway station nearest to their respective homes and to see them safely into the train that is to convey them to their destination.

20. In connection with these and similar duties performed for the benefit of other departments the financial aspect should not be ignored. The Police are regarded as a cheap and convenient agency and no credit is allowed in the budget for the cost of these multifarious services. It is no doubt a matter of indifference to Government whether the money is found from one grant or another but now that the amount of the budget provision is so rigorously scrutinised, both in Council and in the public press, we think that the present position requires reconsideration and that the cost of the extra men employed on work directly benefitting other departments should be debited to those departments. Logically it is difficult to see, for instance, why the expenditure incurred in moving treasure should go to swell the total under the head 'Police'. The change would not only result in more accurate figures but would tend to encourage economy in the departments concerned. The sum involved is not negligible: a rough estimate works out at nearly $5\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs.

CHAPTER IV.

QUESTION OF SUBSTITUTION BY POLICE OF TOWN WATCHMEN.

21. The examination of the question of the protection afforded in towns and cantonments where Police are now employed has been made in the case of each town and cantonment and the district statements of estimated requirements include alterations, in the strength now employed in those places, which we consider necessary. The further portion of the third term of reference calls for recommendations in reference to the substitution by enrolled Police of town watchmen in other towns and a reference has been made above to the unanimity with which witnesses appearing before us have recommended this substitution. The reasons advanced were in almost all cases the same: the desirability of relieving the present inefficient chowkidari staff by a body of men belonging to a disciplined force. In the case of one or two towns however the argument in favour of substitution that was advanced is the inability of the town to pay for an adequate watch and ward establishment. The general opinion of district officers was that, in recommending such substitutions, some minimum limit of population must be fixed, towns below that limit being left with a staff of watchmen. The limit suggested by practically all witnesses was 5,000 inhabitants and with one or two exceptions we have dealt only with towns of and above that size.

22. There are at present several small towns in the Province with a population well below 5,000 inhabitants to which town Police have already been given and we have considered these in assessing the general needs of the districts where they are situated. The exceptions to the general rule we have observed are towns situated at the headquarters of districts or towns which have grown rapidly since the census of 1921 and are now reported to be above the 5,000 mark as a result of that growth Muzaffargarh is an example of the first class, Okara and Pattoki, in the Montgomery and Lahore Districts, examples of the second. In the case of towns with a mixed establishment for watch and ward of Police and chowkidars, such as Hissar, Sirsa and Hansi in Hissar District and Jagadhri in Ambala, we have dealt with the Police needs on the assumption that the chowkidars will be done away with and these cases are also included in the district statements.

23. The proposals that follow, then, with the one or two exceptions named, relate to towns with a population of 5,000 or more at the last census in which the substitution of town watchmen by Police is recommended by the district officers. The details of strength of Police deemed necessary are as follows :—

The total force required for this substitution is therefore 60 head constables and 609 constables. The cost of this establishment at the existing rates of pay would be Rs. 1,58,058-0-0; at the rates of pay we have recommended for adoption it would be Rs. 1,89,780-9-0 per annum. CHAPTER V.

DISCUSSION ON CORRUPTION AND REMEDIES SUGGESTED.

24. The All-India Police Commission of 1902-03 made various recommendations, involving, inter alia, improvements in pay which were long overdue. They expressed the belief that their suggestions would, when carried out, effect in due course not only a definite amelioration in the conditions of service but also a gradual elimination of the irregularities and corruption then rampant in the lower grades of the force. How far this confidence has been justified in this Province may be judged from the report of the King Committee as well as from the evidence collected during our enquiry. There is undoubtedly a change for the better in the treatment meted out to the accused and the suspects during investigation: cases of actual torture are now extremely uncommon. But apart from this, it cannot be said that any real advance has been made. Bribery and corruption appear to be as universal now as twenty years ago, the only difference being that the increase in the wealth of the Province leads to the payment of larger sums.

25. The importance of an honest Police force cannot be over-emphasised. This department, responsible as it is for the maintenance of law and order and for the protection of the persons and property of the community, comes into close contact with every individual and is not unnaturally regarded as the most essential part of the administrative machinery. Its activities react on the various spheres of public life and the reactions can be healthy only when the tone and efficiency of the force as a whole are thoroughly sound. The integrity of the Police acts as a definite check on nefarious practices in other departments and the first step towards general reform in the matter of corruption must be the purification of this basic service.

26. Before discussing the question of corruption as it affects the Police department in particular, it is desirable to consider whether the exceptional prominence given to this department in Council, on platform, and in press alike is really warranted. The more thoughtful of our witnesses are practically unanimous in frankly admitting not only that other departments of Government are equally corrupt but that certain of them are distinctly worse. The question naturally arises as to why, if this be correct, the outcry against the Police is so strident, while similar offences by other departments are (with the possible exception of the Jail Department) passed over without comment. The answer to that question is twofold. In the first place, the Police are the direct agency for the maintenance of law and order. During the past few years, it has been necessary to take action against a number of movements calculated to subvert that law and order and many of the ringleaders, thanks to the skill and energy displayed by the Police, have been tried and convicted. It is perhaps not unnatural that followers of these movements should bear no love to the agency which was responsible for the failure of their schemes and a campaign of vilification, especially when conducted from the safe shelter of privilege, readily presents itself as an easy and simple method of retaliation. The virulence of this campaign is not unnaturally accentuated by the impotence of the efforts made to seduce the Police from their allegiance. Moreover, in the minds of the rural community—the backbone of the Province—the District Magistrate and the Police still symbolise Government and anything that tends to discredit these agencies must infallibly reflect against Government itself. Consequently, the blackening of the Police is an obvious step towards the weakening of Government and insidious attacks of the kind must be expected from those whose object, avowed or concealed, is the overthrow of the ruling power.

27. In the second place, the form of the corruption practised by the Police differentiates it from that prevalent in other departments. An innocent man is involved in a riot case and finds himself obliged to purchase his freedom from a dishonest Sub-Inspector, who is well aware that there is no evidence against his victim. Threats of handcuffs, of house searches, or of proceedings under the preventive sections are all potent instruments for the extraction of money and it will be observed that in none of them is there any quid pro quo. This fact accounts for much of the discontent. The very person who complains most loudly against Police corruption will cheerfully bribe the Zilladar and Patwari or a Station Master. In the former case, he secures a better position for an outlet (cf., the proverb " give one tin of ghee and take one tin of water "), in the latter he obtains priority for the despatch of his goods. Similar instances could be quoted in respect of the Forest Department, the Judiciary and the Public Works Department, though as to the last one prominent non-official witness cynically remarks " The public do not worry about the Public Works Department which robs the Government ". In all such cases, the donors of the money receive a definite return and the sums paid are regarded as part of the ordinary expenditure required to complete the transaction satisfactorily. On the other hand, an innocent person or even a guilty man against whom there is no proof naturally feels aggrieved at having to part with an amount for which no actual benefit is received. It is for this reason that corruption in the Police department stands in public estimation on a different footing from that which obtains to an equal or greater extent in other departments. The force of the argument is not affected by the existence of one or two exceptions, e.g., hush money paid by owners of gambling dens or disorderly houses to enable operations to be carried on undisturbed. Apart from corruption, as described above, there are certain perquisites enjoyed by Sub-Inspectors and other Police officials. These perquisites though illicit have the sanction of custom and it is doubtful whether the rural population feel any great grievance in respect of these. At all events, a careful distinction is drawn by witness between "rishwat" and "rivaj". As examples of the latter may be mentioned free fodder for the Sub-Inspector's horse and free entertainment in villages during the investigation of cases. In a few districts there appears to be a regular recognition of the Sub-Inspector in the matter of faslana or a share of certain crops—a payment usually confined to the Revenue and Irrigation Departments.

28. It may at this stage be desirable to indicate in brief detail, a few of the methods employed by dishonest Sub-Inspectors when practising extortion. The information will be of use when the question of remedies comes under consideration. We have not thought it necessary to discuss the lesser forms of dishonesty—levy of fodder, provisions, and the like—not because such irregularities meet with our approval, but because they are of small importance compared with the evils described below These may be divided into two classes and the great majority of corrupt investigating officers content themselves with the first of these classes, into which the element of bluff largely enters and by which the success of the prosecution is not endangered. Many dishonest Sub-Inspectors take a pride in their work and draw the line at any action which would lessen the chance of the conviction of the real offender.

29. The first class resolves itself into several heads of which (i) and (iii) are probably those most generally employed :—

(i) The summoning of persons who are not directly concerned with the case under investigation and their detention until they have paid fo release.

(ii) Threats to search the houses of respectable person of means.

(iii) The release on payment of genuine accused against whom no sufficient evidence is obtainable.

(iv) Reduction of the charge also on payment against an accused in respect of whom proof only as to the lesser charges exists.

(v) Threats to implicate partizans and friends of the accused who have no real connection with the case. This method is often employed at the instigation of a complainant.

(vi) Threats of proceedings under section 107, Criminal Procedure Code.

(vii) Threats to get an entry made in Register No. X.

30. In the second class, the Sub-Inspector deliberately prostitutes his sense of duty :—

(i) By arranging with the prosecution witnesses that they shall not give incriminating evidence when the challan comes before the court.

(ii) By making up false cases against innocent persons.

(iii) By releasing guilty persons against whom sufficient evidence can be obtained.

(iv) By guaranteeing immunity to badmashes in consideration of a regular contribution.

31. Cases have been known where the Sub-Inspector has delegated his powers of extortion to Zaildars, who in return pay him a fixed amount each month and are then allowed to make as much money as they can out of the crime in their zail. It is said that in one thana the Sub-Inspector obtained in this way Rs. 1,000 per month from each of the four Zaildars. In addition, as stated before, Sub-Inspectors in cities are able to add to their income by suitable arrangements with keepers of gambling dens and disorderly houses.

32. The reasons for the existence of wide-spread corruption are, in our opinion, fourfold. First and foremost, there is the attitude of the general public on the subject. For centuries, the Indian has regarded Government service less as a career than as an opportunity. Under the Moghal Emperors, for instance, salaries were nominal, yet the incumbents amassed great wealth. Even at the present day instances of the kind are not wanting and there is no evidence that such men are shunned by their fellows. On the contrary, it is probably the case that, while honesty is appreciated, the Government official who has failed to feather his nest is regarded as a fool. The British Government by setting its face against corruption has kept the latter to some extent at least in check, but it is only the fear of the employer and not the force of public opinion that prescribes the limits. It is possible that with the spread of education public opinion will make itself felt and will ostracise the dishonest official, but so far there are no definite signs of a change. Only the other day, a prominent local body, which is entirely non-official, deliberately, reinstated three employees who had been found guilty of corruption. One important non-official Indian witness summed up the present situation as follows : "The people are ready to give, the local magnates are ready to act as intermediaries and the officials are ready to take". So long as such conditions exist, the eradication of corruption by Government is impracticable.

33. The second reason is a direct corollary of the first. The punishment of dishonest officials is a matter of extreme difficulty. Under the Penal Code the giver of the bribe is equally guilty with the bribe-taker and as bribes do not as a rule pass publicly, judicial proof in the great majority of cases cannot be obtained. Departmental procedure is now so complicated that even the most zealous Superintendent of Police cannot hope in the present state of public opinion to bring matters to a successful conclusion. Consequently, the dishonest official is well aware that in ordinary circumstances there is little danger of dismissal. The wide-spread tendency to throw the whole blame for the existence of corruption on Government and to assume that there is no real desire to check bribery is largely though not entirely due to a failure both to appreciate the obstacles that lie in the way of successful action and to realise the absolute necessity of that co-operation on the part of the people through which alone such abuses can be rectified. At the same time, from the point of view of the peasant, the assumption is not unreasonable. To his mind Government is all powerful and this all powerful Government periodically announces that it is determined to put a stop to bribery. When it is seen that these announcements bear little or no fruit, the natural inference is that Government is not whole-hearted in the matter. The position is most unfortunate but not illogical.

34. A third reason is to be found in the inadequate training of the rank and file; the lack of sufficient attention to the instruction of subordinate officers and men in their duties and obligations to the public; and the want of proper supervision on the part of Superintendents of Police who are too much tied down to headquarters by the multiplicity of miscellaneous office work. These points will be discussed at a later stage of the report and need not be developed here.

35. Lastly, the temptation to dishonesty, already sufficiently great, is enhanced by the low scale of pay. It is generally admitted by witnesses that the honesty of the Sub-Inspector is the important factor in the case; "An honest Sub-Inspector makes an honest thana". It is also generally admitted that the present pay is inadequate. For one thing initial expenses are heavy. The Sub-Inspector has to provide himself with a good horse and equip himself with a complete set of uniform. At the very outset of his career, therefore, when it is most important that the Sub-Inspector should keep straight, he is forced—unless he is in possession of private means—to look outside for money. Once the first downward step is taken, the old French proverb applies "l'appetit vient en mangeant". In regard to the constable we cannot do better than emphasise the remarks made on page 20 of the report for Police Administration in the Punjab for the year 1924, where it was pointed out that the standard of pay laid down by Government for a good constable was a wage rather higher than the best unskilled labour could command in the open market. Can it be said that the present pay fulfils that condition and if not, cannot part of the corruption be rightly assigned to the failure to provide an adequate living wage?

36. The existence of the disease requires no proof: it is frankly admitted by all officers of the department. The main causes have, we believe, been enumerated above and require no further discussion. The real difficulties in the case arise with the question of remedial treatment. The vast body of public criticism is of no assistance: it is purely destructive. Even the debates in Council are of little value in this respect. One Indian non-official member explains the position as follows: "The members speak haphazard. There is no concrete suggestion made by them, they simply go on saying that the Police are corrupt". Most of our witnesses have been content to pin their faith to better supervision, better education and better pay. In our opinion, however, the chief desideratum is the establishment of a more healthy public opinion on the subject of bribery. So long as the present attitude of mind obtains, the other measures discussed below can be regarded only as palliatives. They will, we trust, go some way towards reducing the inflammation but they will not in themselves eradicate the disease. It is gratifying to find that several of the more thoughtful non-official witnesses not only realise but have been honest enough to admit that the present deplorable state of affairs is largely the fault of the people themselves. In that recognition we find the most hopeful augury for the future.

37. Unfortunately, the development of a public standard inimical to bribery must necessarily be a plant of slow growth and even the witnesses who visualise the goal are unable to afford much assistance as to the means. Education is generally invoked as the panacea, but we are faced with the difficulty that, despite the enormous spread of education during recent years, most of the evidence is to the effect that corruption has increased rather than decreased. This result is so contradictory that the only possible conclusion would appear to be that there is something wanting in the present system of education. We feel that we are treading on delicate ground but we have the support of many non-official witnesses. The word "education" implies more than a mere ability to pass examinations; it connotes both discipline and formation of character. We can see no hope of improvement in public morality in the matter of corruption until the latter aspects of education are more strongly emphasised. The blame does not rest entirely with Government: parents have obvious duties in the way of early training, and the lack of such training cannot be made altogether good by any efforts on the part of school masters. As matters stand it would appear as if each party were content to lay the responsibility on the other, and do nothing. At any rate we have been impressed by the obvious dissatisfaction evinced by any witnesses with regard to the present methods of education and we are impelled to mention this matter because of our brief that, without education in the real sense of the word that healthy public opinion through which alone corruption can be eradicated, will not be evolved. At the same time we are confident that men who have the interests of the people at heart might do much to improve matters not only by example but by precept. We were much interested to learn that one very distinguished non-official was employing his spare time in good propaganda work of this kind. Others might find a useful outlet for their public spirit by following in his footsteps. We commend to their attention the pregnant words of Massillon: "The crowd has no law but example".

38. But while we are convinced that much can be done by public-spirited Indian gentlemen in the way of promoting a higher standard in respect of bribery, we are far from thinking that Government should be content to rely on such efforts. As one prominent educationalist put it "some official agency must encourage public opinion". Declarations and pronouncements have been frequent and have had some beneficial but only transient effect; what is wanted is some definite action as opposed to mere words. A European with an intimate knowledge of the people has proposed the formation of anti-bribery leagues in each district under the guidance of the Deputy Commissioner. This officer would hold meetings at various places when on tour and not only non-officials but all Government servants in the district would be invited to enrol themselves. We believe that the mere existence of such leagues would act as a powerful deterrent to illicit practices, while their formation would show the community that Government was genuinely anxious to improve the present position. Most important of all, these leagues would serve to accelerate a general development of healthy public opinion. Some of the evidence before us suggests that there already exists a desire, as yet feeble and inarticulate, for better things, and this recommendation would provide it with a real opportunity to make itself felt.

39. We now proceed to indicate a few palliatives which, while not in themselves likely to effect a permanent cure, may tend to bring about some temporary amelioration during the period which must necessarily elapse before the standard of public opinion can be raised. The first and most important of these is increased supervison. There is general consensus of opinion that District Magistrates and Superintendents of Police alike are unable now-a-days, to the detriment of the administration, to devote a sufficient portion of their time to supervising their subordinates. There are many reasons for this falling off. The war and the changed conditions in the Province led to the premature retirement of many valuable and experienced officers * * * * *. There has been a great increase in routine work with the result that in certain districts touring has had to be sacrificed to the desk. In other districts less over-burdened in this respect the drastic curtailment of budget allotments for touring and the inadequate rates of travelling allowance have forced officers to reduce their camp life to the barest minimum. Political movements too have in various places largely absorbed the energies of those responsible for the maintenance of law and order. We feel most strongly that the removal of the personal touch that existed in the past between the district officer and the rural community is a loss which can but have deplorable consequences and in this view we are supported by practically all non-official witnesses. The advent of the motor-car has no doubt complicated matters and there is some truth in the statement (more hibernico) that all the country people now see of the district officer is the smell of his petrol. The result of all these factors is that the district officer who is the pivot of the whole administration is unknown to the great mass of the people for whom he is responsible. Constant transfers have aided the forces of disruption and intensified the trouble. It is not without significance that in the district where the largest proportion of reputedly honest Sub-Inspectors is to be found, the Superintendent of Police had not only held charge for several years, but had devoted a large portion of his time to leisurely tours and constant intercourse with the ordinary zamindar. We ourselves have no doubt that careful supervision by the right type of officer is the surest method of reducing corruption. But no matter how able an officer may be his supervision will be of little avail unless he is able to leave headquarters for lengthy periods of camp life. We have carefully questioned non-official witnesses as to whether such tours were felt to be a burden on the people and we were assured that on the contrary they would be welcomed. The institution of contractors removes the opportunity afforded by such visits to the making of large indents by dishonest subordinates for their own purposes on the pretext that the articles were required by the officer, while the camp staff can be cut down to a minimum. We should have preferred to recommend the use of tents as tending to bring the officer in closer contact with the villagers and not merely with the zaildars and lambardars who are only too often tools of the Police and who are not therefore in a position to throw much true light on local affairs. Officers, however, tell us that they cannot afford the expenses of tents on present allowances and difficulties might conceivably arise as to supplies. In most districts bungalows are now fairly plentiful and if tents cannot be used, much valuable work can be done by employing such bungalows as bases from which expeditions on horse-back can be made to the neighbouring villages. It is only by such methods that confidence can be established between the zamindar and the officer and without such confidence no reliable information can be obtained. The mere fact that a Superintendent of Police is known to be in a position to make first hand enquiries from disinterested persons constitutes a considerable check on the nefarious practices of subordinates. There should be no great difficulty in reducing the amount of the far less important routine work and, as various non-official members of the Legislative Council themselves now realise that the cutting down of touring allotments and rates was a mistake, there seems to be no reason why this important check should not be put into operation without delay.

* * * * * *

41. If proper supervision is to be maintained, some strengthening of the gazetted staff is essential. The Superintendent of Police cannot tour freely unless he can leave his routine work at headquarters in competent hands. In every district, therefore, apart from staff in sub-divisions, the Superintendent should command the services of an Assistant Superintendent of Police or a Deputy Superintendent of Police at headquarters. In certain districts such as Lyallpur, Amritsar, Montgomery and Sialkot, where criminal work is extremely heavy, a third gazetted officer may be required. We realise that these proposals, though they represent, in our opinion, an absolute minimum, will entail considerable additional expense and to reduce the bill we are prepared to recommend the abolition of all Inspectors, apart from Court Inspectors and those holding special appointments in Cantonments and Cities. The Inspector in a district appears in many cases to be a fifth wheel to the coach. He is no doubt useful but various witnesses have declared that the old Circle Inspector was of more value. With the provision of a proper reserve of Sub-Inspectors and the strengthening of weak spots, we do not believe that the disappearance of the ordinary Inspector will cause any serious dislocation in Police administration. The money so saved can be utilized towards meeting the extra cost of the much-needed addition to the supervising agency.

42. The increased supervision should in natural course lead to the detection of corrupt officials and it is essential both for the good of the force and for the restoration of public confidence that the offenders should be punished. At present proceedings are apt to be infructuous. As pointed out above, legal proof of bribery is extremely difficult to obtain. The cumbrous procedure laid down for departmental action renders escape easy and, even if a conviction is obtained, there are still several loopholes open in the shape of appeals and petitions. The dice, in fact, are heavily loaded in favour of the dishonest official. This very fact operates as a vicious circle. Evidence is from the nature of the case difficult to obtain and the few witnesses that might come forward will not do so from a fear that the accused will escape and exact full reprisals. The remedy is not obvious. It has been suggested that in cases of bribery and the like, the present departmental procedure should be superseded by a trial on the lines of a court-martial from whose decision one and only one appeal should be allowed. Primâ facie, the idea has much to commend it. The mere knowledge that offenders were liable to summary trial before a tribunal of the kind would operate as a check on corruption, while some of the wider avenues of escape would be closed. But further examination tends to blur the favourable impression. It is doubtful whether a court-martial composed of members of the department would command that public confidence and co-operation without which prospects of success are remote. On the other hand, if the Deputy Commissioner is to be appointed President, the trials would form a substantial addition to the work of an officer who already, in most cases, carries too heavy a burden. We are reluctantly compelled, therefore, to pronounce against this proposal.

43. We are of opinion that when a Superintendent of Police has reason to believe that a Sub-Inspector is dishonest the latter should be immediately transferred to another district and, if the Superintendent of that district comes to a similar conclusion, the Sub-Inspector's promotion should be definitely stopped and no further increments of pay allowed to him until such time as he has made it clear that he has reformed his ways. We are aware that a Deputy Commissioner can for similar reasons withhold increments from a Tahsildar but we have suggested the double check in view of the fact that, as compared with other services, false accusations are more readily brought against the Police.

44. There should be encouragement of the honest officer. At first sight this recommendation may appear to be altogether superfluous. Government has repeatedly expressed its abhorrence of corruption and the natural assumption is that the honest man is appreciated. The people, though far too indifferent to bribery, profess a genuine admiration for the official who is above temptation. In such circumstances, the encouragement of the latter would appear to follow as a matter of course. The following passage culled at haphazard from a number of similar remarks recorded by us will help to elucidate the situation—

> "There is no appreciation of honest men, so how can corruption decrease? Honest men are molested: dishonest men are living at ease. Very few people are honest from fear of God.......... An honest officer is known everywhere throughout the district."

The witness, an Indian gentleman of education and experience, in these simple words gives utterance to views which appear to be held universally by non-officials. Strangely enough, however, they find corroboration in the body of official testimony. A European Deputy Commissioner, who has spent a good many years in this country, states :

> "The scales are definitely against the honest men in the Government service. The honest Naib-Tahsildar will be transferred to the worst tahsil in the Division. A dishonest Naib-Tahsildar or Tahsildar can get the best tahsil by bribing the clerks in the Commissioner's office. The honest man has no chance."

These two extracts could be largely elaborated, but we consider that, coming as they do from widely different sources, they suffice to show that the specific inclusion of this subject in our report is not without justification. The people are entirely unable to understand the policy of Government. On the one hand, they hear and read vehement denunciations of corruption ; on the other, they see the honest man—the exception to the ordinary rule—rewarded by the worst stations and entirely neglected. The plums of the service are not for him but for his dishonest confrere whom the Government professes to abhor. A reputation for honesty is not easily acquired by the lower ranks of the Police force and when once that reputation has been established, every member of the public is well aware of the fact. It is argued that the Government with all the sources of information at its command cannot possibly be in ignorance of so patent a fact. When the community see that not only does no reward in the shape of extra promotion come in the way of the honest officer but rather banishment and oblique, they naturally infer that Government's declarations on the subject of corruption are mere camouflage and that there is no real desire to stamp it out. The position is perfectly logical and the evidence before us makes it clear that there is a wide-spread and genuine belief that Government secretly favours the dishonest servant. This belief is from all points of view most deplorable and until it is dispelled by definite action no protestations will be of any avail. The honest Sub-Inspector has many difficulties placed in his way and he deserves the fullest support and recognition on the part of his employers. He has to contend with the machinations of corrupt subordinates whose illicit gains are endangered by his probity ; he has to face the taunts of dishonest intermediaries, whose services are no longer at his command ; he has to stand aside and watch promotions given to unscrupulous fellow workers who are prepared to pay for them ; he has to fight the depredations of the badmashes as he scorns to enter into any league with them ; in short, he has to plough a lone furrow supported only by his sense of self-respect and by the voiceless approval of the law-abiding members of the community. In these circumstances, the marvel is that even five just men can be found. We are of opinion that special promotion publicly granted to men who are known to be honest would do more to convince the community at large of Government's real position in respect of corruption than any other measures that can be devised. And until the people are satisfied on this point, it is futile to expect their co-operation without which no great or lasting improvement can be effected.

45. Closely connected with what has been written above is the question of publicity. During the examination of witnesses, we have been constantly told that the Police from top to bottom are so imbued with esprit de corps that no action is taken against offenders. The view is entirely erroneous as statistics show that this department has done more than any other to carry out the recommendations of the King Bribery Committee with the result that dismissals and other punishments have been not infrequent. The fact that this impression is so universal points to the necessity of giving full publicity to whatever is done in the way of punishment or reward. We are informed that the action taken during Sir Michael O'Dwyer's time against certain Magistrates had a most beneficial though temporary effect and it is probable that much of the benefit was derived from the publicity attending the proceedings. We recommend that, whenever successful action is taken against corrupt members of the Police department, the results should be made known as widely as possible. Such broadcasting will have a double effect: it will show the public that Government is not indifferent in regard to corruption and it will bring home to other dishonest officials the danger of illicit practices.

46. As a further palliative we suggest that some improvement is possible in the matter of recruitment. It was hoped that when the system of direct appointment to Sub-Inspectorships was developed under the proposals of the Indian Police Commission of 1902-03, the new material with the advantage of a better education and an avoidance of contamination in the lower ranks would improve both the efficiency and morale of the force. We have already pointed out that the results have been most disappointing. It may be contended that the non-success of the system is due not to any inherent defects but to the failure to make a proper selection in filling vacancies. We are, however, satisfied that this is not the case and that every possible care is taken to choose the best of the available candidates. We have elsewhere suggested that the number of direct appointments to this post should be reduced and that at least 50 per cent. of Sub-Inspectorships should be recruited from the rank of Assistant Sub-Inspector. In filling vacancies, whether as direct appointment or by promotion from the lower ranks, we would urge that special stress be laid upon the honesty not only of the candidate but of his family. Our witnesses practically without exception tell us that they would much prefer the appointment of a less highly educated youth of good family to the pick of those whose claims are purely educational. They contend that a boy of good stock will not be forgetful of the family izzat and will, therefore, be likely to run straight. It is suggested too that, where candidates are the sons of Government officials, the records of the latter should be carefully scrutinised and no appointment made unless the parent's reputation in the matter of honesty is satisfactory. We endorse these views.

47. Several non-official witnesses have complained that the Superintendent of Police is often not sufficiently accessible and therefore deprives himself of much valuable information on the subject of corruption. We doubt whether this complaint is of general application but we can understand that in some districts Superintendents of Police are so over-burdened with work that they have little time to devote to visitors, many of whom come only because they have some axe of their own to grind. At the same time we fully appreciate the position of the Indian gentleman who is willing to co-operate with the Superintendent but who is not prepared even pro bono publico to wait an indefinite time outside the house or office and to grease the palm of the orderly before gaining admission. We consider that definite hours on definite days should be set apart by every Superintendent when he is at headquarters for the reception of visitors and that in addition he should endeavour to grant special interviews to Indian gentlemen whose time is valuable, e.g., members of the bar, these interviews to be arranged by correspondence. It is difficult to eradicate the system of tipping but the arrangements suggested above should prevent any demand on the part of the orderly and the maintenance of a book or list in which would-be visitors can on arrival inscribe their names would act as a further check on greed. We would further recommend that every Superintendent of Police should keep a locked petition box outside his office into which written complaints can be dropped. The key of this box should be kept by the Superintendent of Police himself (or when he is in camp by the Senior Gazetted Officer) who should himself examine the contents before any further action is taken. By this means it should be possible to prevent the suppression of information directed against persons employed in the office or their friends.

48. A brief reference may be made to the suggestion supported by various witnesses that a yearly check should be maintained on the acquisition of property by Police officials. It is so easy to evade such checks by the introduction of convenient relatives that we doubt the efficacy of this remedy, which, we believe, has been applied without much measure of success in other departments. It is possible, however, that with that increased co-operation between the Superintendent of Police and the public, which we hope will be one result of our recommendations, an annual inquisition of the kind may prove to have deterrent features which as time goes on may become intensified. The annual returns might be conveniently laid before a meeting of the Selection Board which, if our recommendation below is carried out, will be able to indent on the knowledge of local non-officials.

49. In an enquiry of this kind, the cognate question of recruitment and training obviously demand some consideration. With regard to the former, the two main subjects of criticism were the preponderance of Muslims in the lower ranks and the lack of proper care in the selection of the directly appointed Sub-Inspectors. We have made a careful examination into both these points. The large proportion of Muslim constable is due simply to the fact that on the present rates of pay Hindus and Sikhs are not tempted to come forward. The Hindu in most districts finds that he can earn more money in other ways while he often dislikes the rough work a constable has to undertake. Hindu Jats are confined to a few localities and do not care to serve outside them. The Sikh, on the other hand, prefers military service or employment in the Police abroad. Only the other day there were 600 Sikh applicants for 100 Police appointments in another country, but not one of the 500 disappointed candidates could be persuaded to serve in his own Province. We have elsewhere recommended some improvement in the pay of constables and it is possible that the increase, if sanctioned, may induce more Hindus and Sikhs to come forward. The present position is not altogether satisfactory but the defect cannot be laid at the door of the recruiting officers.

50. So far as the recruitment of directly appointed Sub-Inspectors is concerned, the present system, careful and elaborate, ought to result in the selection of the best material that offers. Each candidate has to be reported on by the Superintendent of Police of the district to which he belongs, and provided his physical qualifications are up to standard his name is then entered on the list of candidates. When vacancies occur, the candidates in this list are summoned before the Deputy Inspector-General or before a Board, each member of which individually gives the candidate marks for the various qualities possessed by him. The marks are then totalled and compared and the candidates chosen accordingly. The only improvement on the system which we can suggest is the association of one or two non-officials at every selection meeting. Their co-operation would be valuable and their appointment would, we believe, be welcomed by the public. We recognise the danger of communal prejudice and underhand influence. The former risk need not be exaggerated; there are in most districts gentlemen of public spirit and independent views who can be trusted to take the broad view. To save the members of the board from the endless trouble and annoyance caused by efforts at Sifarish, we suggest :—

(a) that the names of the non-officials appointed should be kept confidential until the meeting has been held, and

(b) that any attempt made to approach any member of the board (official or non-official) with reference to a candidate should, ipso facto, result in the removal of the candidate's name from the register. Similar methods might be adopted in regard to the recruitment of directly appointed head constables.

51. We visited the Training School at Phillaur and have been at some pains to elicit from witnesses their views both as to any defects in the training of the force and as to suggestions tending to improve the general standard of work and discipline. Most of the witnesses were in favour of a longer period of training and greater insistence on the duties and behaviour to the public. We were ourselves much impressed with the School at Phillaur and the excellence of the work carried on there and we have few criticisms to offer in respect of this institution. We suggest however that something more might be done to inculcate the necessity of more courteous treatment to the public. Corruption is admittedly rife in the department but the evidence before us shows conclusively that part of the outcry against the department is due to a failure on the part of many members of the force to appreciate their real position qua the public. The Hakim aspect is apt to overshadow the Mulazim. It should be made clear to members of the School that while the powers invested in the Police are to be sternly enforced against evil doers, the rest of the community is entitled not only to protection but to courtsey. We consider too that part of the time expended in drill might be more profitably employed in the acquisition of a knowledge of miscellaneous duties, such as traffic control, first aid and the like. The new system of physical training appeared to us excellent, aiming as it does not only at the strengthening of physique but at the development of alertness and powers of observation. It is more important that constables should be able to tackle dacoits or arrest obstreperous offenders than that they should be able to march past in faultless style at some ceremonial parade. Possibly the elements of jiu jitsu could be added to the curriculum.

52. While the Phillaur training may be regarded as both adequate and satisfactory, we are forced to the conclusion that the ordinary Lines training in the great majority of districts leaves much to be desired. There are two main reasons for this defect. In the first place there is no provision for proper instructors in the recruit schools. Secondly, the absence of sufficient reserves makes any systematic training impossible. The combined result is obvious: constables are foisted on the public without any real knowledge of the elements of the duties they are supposed to perform. It is greatly to their credit in the circumstances that they attain even the moderate success which attends their efforts. All witnesses who have studied the subject agree that the 15 per cent. reserve is totally insufficient. Most districts have a waiting list of candidates for leave on full pay and have to restrict sanction to cases of urgency. This state of affairs neither promotes contentment among the ranks nor conduces to efficiency; on the other hand it encourages resignations. Recruitment is also affected and the difficulties of proper administration largely increased. We have elsewhere explained our reasons for coming to the conclusion that the minimum working reserve of constables is 17·5 per cent. With that reserve and the provision of proper instructors in the Lines schools a great and valuable improvement can be affected in the training of the ordinary constable. Only a very small proportion of this rank can be admitted to the school at Phillaur owing inter alia to lack of accommodation and consequently it is essential that the Lines schools should form a real training ground. Suitable instructors could readily be selected by the Phillaur authorities from cadets evincing an aptitude for teaching. These instructors would find their work in the Lines school helpful to them when they passed on to general duty. Any extra expense will, in our opinion, be fully justified by the increase in efficiency.

53. Considerable stress is laid on the importance of close co-operation between the District Magistrate and the Superintendent of Police, and also between the latter and the Magistrates of Ilakas. We believe that, as a general rule, the former do maintain a close personal touch and the recent orders of the High Court (Correction slip No. 39, dated 3rd February 1926) have emphasised the necessity on the part of Deputy Commissioners of daily attention to their duties in respect of the criminal administration of their districts. In these circumstances, no further remarks on the point are called for. But it is clear that the connection between Superintendents of Police and Ilaqa Magistrates is somewhat nebulous. The tendency of the latter is to regard themselves as Judges, pure and simple, whose only duty in regard to criminal administration is the decision of cases placed before them. We welcome the recent pronouncement of the High Court in the orders above quoted to the effect that the Ilaka Magistrate "is at all times responsible for the maintenance of the peace in the area which is made over into his charge". And again, "Every effort should be made to get the Ilaka Magistrate to take a personal interest in and gain a thorough knowledge of his own thanas". Our enquiry shows that these orders have not been passed too soon and we trust that care will be taken that they are not overlooked. Such Magistrates, if themselves competent and honest, can do much to reduce corruption. They are in a position to acquire much first-hand knowledge as to the working of their respective thanas and they should be encouraged to pass on to the Superintendent of Police all facts that are likely to assist that officer in the discharge of his duties. We are confident that, if the work is properly arranged, visits to the ilaqas will not cause any dislocation of work or much inconvenience to the Bar and the trial of suitable cases in the neighbourhood of the thana concerned will save the witnesses time and trouble. In cases in which he is not personally interested the Punjabi is a reluctant witness and it is only natural that he should do his best to escape the journeys and delays inseparable from trials at headquarters. We believe that if a large number of cases could be disposed of more or less on the spot, the work of detection and investigation would be materially lightened owing to the more willing co-operation of the public.

54. By natural sequence, we pass on to consider the question of panchayats. In this Province, the existence of latent communal trouble has militated against the usefulness of these bodies. Nevertheless, we consider that greater advantage could be taken of such bodies as do exist and that further efforts should be made towards increasing their number. We have been told, for instance, that in the Gurdaspur District (where communal trouble is by no means unknown) a panchayat has dealt with 80 cases in the past three years and that in only one instance was any appeal preferred. A further result of the good work done by this body is a very large reduction in the crime of the locality. We cannot but feel that figures of the kind form the strongest possible argument for further endeavour to establish and maintain such bodies. The perjury that renders the administration of justice so difficult in ordinary courts is far less common and these tribunals can conveniently dispose of all petty theft and assault cases, thus saving the injured party and his witnesses trouble and expense while leaving the Police to devote their energies to more important work.

55. There are certain minor and more technical matters which, though they may primâ facie appear to be of small moment, deserve mention because our non-official witnesses have in general laid considerable stress on the desirability of action with a view to remedy defects. One general cause of complaint is to be found in the practice whereby a Sub-Inspector when investigating a case summons all and sundry to attend. It is alleged that this indiscriminate calling is a fertile source of corruption. Persons are detained on the flimsiest pretext and are eventually compelled to purchase release. Section 160, Criminal Procedure Code, does not make it compulsory for an investigating officer to issue a written order but there is no doubt that the present system is highly unpopular. Persons who have no interest in or connection with the case are kept hanging on to the detriment of their own work and without any compensatory advantage to the investigation. They do not even know whether they are suspected of the crime or merely supposed to be in possession of useful information. We consider that in future investigating officers should be directed to issue written orders requiring attendance and that the copy of the order given to the perons summoned should bear both the time of arrival and the time at which the person was allowed to depart. The introduction of this system will give extra trouble to the investigating officer and may tend to cramp the enquiry. A supply of suitable forms will, however, reduce the work as far as possible and we are of opinion that any risk involved is fully justified by the relief afforded to the general public.

56. The evidence before us shows also that the Police diaries (zimni) are regarded with much suspicion by the general public. Witnesses allege that the checks provided are futile and that it is easy for a Sub-Inspector to amend a previous report to suit altered circumstances or even to recall it and substitute an entirely different account. Complaints are also made that, even when the report is despatched in due course, the statements attributed to witnesses are entirely different to the accounts they had given. Officers accustomed to study such diaries tell us on the other hand that they can detect any trickery of the kind and that, as a matter of fact, tampering with these documents is not common. As a result too of recent legislation, the importance of the zimni, from a court point of view, will be greatly minimised. At the same time we feel that the complaint in regard to these diaries cannot be lightly dismissed and we consider that, in the interests of the department as well as of the public, efforts should be made to restore confidence. We recommend therefore that zimnis should henceforward be recorded in books properly paged. Each alternate page should be perforated and a copying process employed so that the diary will be automatically recorded in duplicate. The perforated page will be sent to the thana as usual, instructions being issued as to careful record on both original and copy of the date and hour of the closing of the diary, and of the time and mode of despatch to the thana. The thana muharrir will on receipt note the date and hour of arrival and the time of its despatch to the post. This method will involve some slight additional expense in connection with the provision of suitable books but we are confident that the expenditure will meet with the full approval of the public.

57. Much criticism has been directed against the First Information Report. It is alleged that a complainant cannot hope to have his report recorded unless he is prepared to fee the thana muharrir; that many cases occur where the report is not recorded; and that the report in its finished form is often entirely different from the statement actually made by the complainant. It is also stated that complainants are forced to mention the names of some persons to be entered as suspects even where no suspicion attaches to them in the mind of the deponent. The formidable indictment is not without justification and one result of these irregularities is that crime is concealed, the injured party preferring to submit to the loss he has sustained rather than face the trials that await him should he seek redress through the ordinary channel. There are, however, two sides to this question. The First Information Report has become a fetish with many judicial officers and many true cases would fail unless every possible precaution is taken in the recording of the original statement made by the aggrieved party. The latter, often an illiterate villager, is unable to give a coherent and straight-forward account of what has occurred and much care and patience is required before the grain of truth can be winnowed from the chaff of exaggeration. Ordinarily, therefore, a complainant has to be questioned and cross-questioned before the real facts can be elicited and an intelligible record prepared able to bear at a later stage the fierce scrutiny directed on it.

58. There is no doubt that the failure to register complaints is, in many cases, due to the simple fact that the present staff cannot cope with the work of investigation and in self-defence refuse to take cognizance of offences which are either unimportant in themselves or in which the probabilities of successful prosecution of the offenders are remote. Where a Sub-Inspector finds that he cannot cope with the volume of crime, he naturally employs a system of selection. This difficulty can only be overcome by a strengthening of the investigation staff and we have dealt with this subject elsewhere.

59. It is not easy to put a stop to demands by the muharrir head constable. The honesty of the Sub-Inspector is no doubt a check but only a very partial one, seeing that his almost continuous absence from the thana leaves the muharrir a free hand. With more investigating staff, we may contemplate the presence of the Sub-Inspector or an Assistant Sub-Inspector at the thana to a greater extent than now and increased supervision of this record of first informations. It is possible also that a notice affixed in a prominent place in the thana announcing that gratuities were strictly forbidden and that the Police were bound to register all cognizable complaints might have some effect. But we believe to ensure proper reporting efforts should be made to bring to the notice of the public the provisions of Police Rule 24·2 (1). It is suggested that lambardars and patwaris are not prepared to take the responsibility upon themselves, partly because they fear reprisals on the part of the Police. (Darya which rahna, te magghar machh nal bair.) It seems clear, however, that the system has not been given a fair trial and that the public generally have no knowledge of the facilities thus afforded. We do not see why village and other officials who fail to do their duty in this matter should not be dealt with departmentally and we do not believe that an honest lambardar or patwari incurs any danger of Police prosecution if he performs his duty in this respect. It is of course, probable that the lambardar and patwari will exact a fee just like the thana muharrir, but as the statement will in most cases be given coram popula, the fee is not likely to exceed an amount which the village community considers proper while the facts narrated should presumably be free from elaborative embroidery.

60. With regard to the complaint that the statement contained in the First Information Report does not resemble the account given by the injured party, it should be pointed out that under the rules a copy of the First Information Report has to be given to the deponent. This rule, we believe, is honoured more in the breach than in the observance, but there is no reason why it should not be strictly enforced. An illiterate man can easily find some one to read the copy out to him and orders have been recently issued simplifying the language employed. Any omissions, interpolations, or misstatements can then be readily detected and necessary action taken towards correction.

61. It is admitted by all witnesses, with whom we are in entire agreement, that a mere increase in pay will not in itself eradicate or even reduce corruption. At the same time, there is a general consensus of opinion that the lower ranks of the force are not sufficiently remunerated. In examining the question of pay, we assume that subject to the minimum of a living wage, Government's commitments in the matter of pay should be determined by ordinary market rates. In other words, Government servants should receive approximately what a private employer disburses to men of similar position and attainments.

62. In the case of the Police constable, as we have already pointed out, a standard was fixed by Government itself in 1860 when the Police force was organised. So far as we are aware the principle therein enumerated has not been revised. At present, the ordinary constable receives Rs. 17 to start with and rises to Rs. 20 after 20 years' service. Our non-official witnesses state that an unskilled labourer easily earns 10 or 12 annas a day. Allowance must be made for the fact that such employment is not necessarily continuous and that it does not carry a pension, small though the latter is. But even so, it seems clear that constables in this Province are not receiving 'something more than the highest rate of wages for unskilled labour'. Various gentlemen have suggested a starting pay of Rs. 25, but we are not convinced that so large an increase would be justified even if financial difficulties could be overcome. We consider, however, that a scale of Rs. 20—1—25 represents the economic minimum, the increments to be given every five years. This improvement will not, we fear, do much to reduce the communal disparities on the ranks, but it may go some way towards checking the emigration of good material to other more generous provinces and it will fix the pay at rates more in conformity with the standard accepted by Government.

63. Head constables are at present divided into four grades of Rs. 25, Rs. 30, Rs. 35 and Rs. 40. In their case we recommended the abolition of grades and the introduction of a graded scale Rs. 30—1—45. The starting pay of Rs. 30 is the natural sequence to our proposals in regard to constables and we do not consider it necessary to support with arguments the change from a graded to an incremental scale. It is generally admitted that the latter is more popular and satisfactory.

64. If the introduction of the new investigation Assistant Sub-Inspector is approved, we consider that his scale of pay should run from Rs. 45—1—60, the increments, as in the case of the head constable, being annual. We are of opinion that the Rs. 60 is a sufficient maximum for an Assistant Sub-Inspector, who has not shown himself worthy of promotion to the rank of Sub-Inspector. The really competent man will probably have been elevated to the higher rank before completing 15 years' service as Assistant. The period allowed would, therefore, appear to be adequate.

65. The case of the Sub-Inspector has given rise to the expression of many diverse views, though only an insignificant number consider that he is properly remunerated at present. He starts on Rs. 80 and after five years is entitled to an increment of Rs. 10 and by similar steps eventually reaches Rs. 130. Beyond that there are selection grades of Rs. 130, Rs. 140, Rs. 150 and Rs. 160. Non-official witnesses have suggested figures as high as Rs. 175 for the starting pay in the hope apparently that generous emoluments would go some way towards mitigating his appetite for illicit delicacies. We are told, however, that certain thanas are well-known as 'lakhias' and that some Sub-Inspectors enjoy a monthly income equal to or exceeding that received by the highest officers of Government. These accounts are no doubt exaggerated but, even after a substantial deduction has been made, it would seem clear that no imaginable increase of pay would do much to compensate for the loss of the illegal revenue. Many non-officials have argued that the Sub-Inspector is a more important Government servant than the Naib-Tahsildar and that therefore he should receive larger emoluments. It is obviously difficult, if not invidious, to attempt comparisons of the kind and all we need say on the point is that we can see no reason why a Sub-Inspector should not be treated as well as a Naib-Tahsildar in the matter of pay and allowances. The latter exercises certain minor magisterial powers, but on the other hand, the Sub-Inspector shoulders greater responsibilities and possesses more unrestricted powers. We are satisfied that the present pay of Rs. 80 is sufficient to attract a sufficient number of suitable candidates and witnesses, who have had personal experience, have told us that it is possible to live honestly if quietly on that pay. We are, therefore, unable to recommend an increase, but we are strongly of opinion that there are certain disabilities which should be removed. In the first place we suggest that, in place of the quinquennial increments of Rs. 10, there should be, as in the case of the Naib-Tahsildar and Excise Sub-Inspector, annual increments of Rs. 5 up to a maximum of Rs. 130. In the second place, we can see no valid reason for the distinction made between the horse allowance of the Sub-Inspector and the Naib-Tahsildar. The former has to maintain a better animal which in most thanas is more heavily worked. We recommend that this allowance be raised from Rs. 30 to Rs. 40 in all ordinary thanas, and to Rs. 45 in the selected places where the allowance is now Rs. 40. Lastly, we think that there is a strong case for the grant of outfit. At present, the newly appointed Sub-Inspector has to provide himself with full equipment including a saddle and a sword, and the mere fact that the latter is presented to him with due solemnity in public darbar hardly compensates for its cost at a time when cash is probably scanty. As we have already indicated, we believe that this initial expenditure not infrequently leads to the first downward step. We know of no other service in which men of similar rank are expected to equip themselves at their own expense.

66. We have in paragraph 7 of this report recommended the creation of the post of Assistant Sub-Inspector intermediate between those of Sub-Inspector and head constable. We believe that this recommendation will make both for efficiency and integrity. We can see no justification financially or otherwise for recruiting men directly as Sub-Inspectors when equally good material can be obtained by direct recruitment to the rank of head constable. The lengthy period of probation is a great advantage. The new Sub-Inspector is pitchforked after a minimum of training into a position where he enjoys great power and meets with many temptations. By the time the directly appointed head constable has gone through his period as Assistant Sub-Inspector, he has exercised most of these powers and is familiar with all the temptations. If he has succumbed to the latter, he will not receive promotion; on the other hand, if he has withstood them, he is not likely to go wrong when he becomes Sub-Inspector. The right type of youth will be prepared to face this testing probation; the bribe-taker is hardly likely to reach the goal undetected. Moreover, the Assistant Sub-Inspector before being entrusted with the charge of a police station must have shown not only moral worth but detective merit. No objection can be taken to these proposals on the ground that they may tend to reduce the general educational standard of police station officers. Apart from the fact that the efficiency and integrity of the force is of more importance than the mere possession of degrees, our scheme actually provides that a minimum educational qualification of Matriculation should be fixed for all directly recruited head constables—a qualification at present sufficient for direct enrolment as Sub-Inspector. Moreover we recommend that the standard for the latter should be raised to F. A., thus ensuring two years of college discipline by way of safeguard. We are confident too that, if the door of promotion is more widely opened, men of high education will readily come forward as candidates for these posts of head constable. Matriculates are already being enlisted even as constables and we believe that with the prospects of rapid advancement offered by our scheme, suitable recruits of higher educational qualifications will be obtainable. Far, therefore, from discouraging the educated man our proposals will help to raise the general standard and at the same time ensure to some extent at least that admissions to the responsible post of Sub-Inspector will be confined to men to proved probity. We suggest that as a commencement 50 per cent. of these appointments should be made direct and 50 per cent. by promotion from the cadre of Assistant Sub-Inspectors. If the experiment proves successful, the latter percentage might in course of time be increased.

67. In the preceding paragraphs, we have endeavoured to formulate the various suggestions put forward by official and non-official witnesses to reduce and ultimately eradicate corruption. We have added thereto any ideas that presented themselves to us during the course of our enquiry. At the same time, we are conscious of the fact that similar conclusions have been arrived at by other committees constituted for the purpose of discovering remedies for this fell disease and that results have been disappointing. We have made it clear that, in our opinion, no radical cure can be effected until the public definitely set their face against bribery and are prepared to co-operate to the fullest extent with Government. But we cannot overlook the opinions expressed to the effect that though religious restraints now carry little weight, the fear of detection and punishment is still a potent factor in the situation. We have decided, therefore, to tabulate two proposals of a somewhat drastic nature having as their object the intensification of that sense of fear.

68. The first of these is sponsored by a very able and experienced Police officer and involves an entire change in the conditions of service. As has been pointed out, it is extremely difficult to get rid of a corrupt officer either by criminal prosecution or by departmental enquiry. The suggestion is that in the case of all new recruits of non-gazetted rank a provident fund should be substituted for the present rights of pension. The system obtains in the State Railways and is, we believe, general in the case of private firms. The services of an unsatisfactory employé can then be dispensed with by the simple expedient of a month's notice. Apart from any technical difficulties, there are three obvious objections to the scheme. It affords no immediate relief because it does not affect the corrupt members of the force already enlisted. We do not recommend any interference with vested rights and, so far as it goes, the objection must be regarded as valid. There is also the possibility that the abolition of pension rights and the apparent greater insecurity of tenure will militate against recruitment. While we do not wish to minimise the cogency of this argument, we doubt whether, among the lower ranks at any rate, the contingent right to a small pension at a remote date is one of the main inducements that lead to enrolment. Nor do we believe that the candidate, who is prepared to run straight, will be deterred from coming forward by the possibility of an abrupt termination of his service though that possibility will certainly tend to alarm those who regard Government service merely as an opportunity for self-seeking. The loss of such recruits is manifestly a gain to the force and to the public. We consider that sufficient security would be given by allowing the offender, whose service has been thus terminated, to prefer one appeal to the officer next higher in rank to the one who has passed the order. Lastly, there is a danger that, with the risk of sudden retribution, corrupt officials will make their motto carpe diem. Even if the correctness of this criticism be accepted, it is obvious that detection cannot be long delayed and, on the whole, it is better for the community that the term of mischief should be curtailed even if the degree be somewhat intensified. The quicker the self-aggrandisement, the quicker the discovery and punishment.

69. Our Indian colleague is responsible for the second of these additional remedies and his proposals are briefly detailed below, mainly in his own words. He recommends the formation of an independent Provincial Board to deal with corruption in all the various Government departments. As he points out, it would be altogether improper to make invidious distinctions between departments which, according to the evidence, are all tarred with the same brush. This Board would consist of five members: a retired European member of the Indian Civil Service who would act as President, a retired European officer of the Indian Police, a retired European officer of the Public Works Department, and two non-official Indians. He explains the constitution in the following words:—" I have deliberately suggested British officers as official members in view of the present unfortunate state of communal tension in the country. I am not unmindful of the fact that it is possible to select retired Indian officers, whose reputation may be unassailable, but I feel that a Board consisting entirely or even mainly of Indian members will not be able to command public confidence so long as the present state of public feeling continues and motives can be ascribed without compunction, where none exist. I also feel that it might not be able to secure the same assistance from the officers of the Government as a mixed Board would and thus lose a great deal of its utility. The advantage in selecting retired officers as official members is that while they will have the experience and inner knowledge of the working of the various departments, they will be independent of the influence and prejudices of the departmental officials. The President and the two official members amongst them will practically cover all the different departments—practically those which are worst affected; and the two non-officials will be in a position to apprise the Board of the feelings of the people and of changes in public opinion from time to time." Our colleague suggests that the Board should be constituted for a term of three years (capable of extension, if necessary) and that the President and the two official members should be paid Rs. 3,000 and Rs. 2,000 per mensem, respectively, in addition to any pensions that they may enjoy.

70. It is not proposed that this Board should be invested with any powers of punishment. It would be peripatetic and its main function would be acquisition of information regarding the malpractices of officials. Where there was good reason to believe that any non-gazetted officer was corrupt, the Board would, in trivial cases, administer a warning to the culprit and in more serious cases hold an enquiry in public, on the termination of which the result would be communicated to the head of the department concerned with a recommendation as to the punishment to be awarded. The Board would submit periodic confidential reports to Government on the general question of corruption and would from time to time suggest remedies. It would also submit confidentially any information acquired as to the dishonesty of any gazetted officer.

71. Our colleague fully realises that the scheme will evoke criticism, official and non-official, and he endeavours to meet some possible objections—financial and administrative—"Since the Board will deal with corruption in all the Government departments, the expense involved will be infinitesimal as compared with the good which will accrue from it. Even if it is able to secure only a partial relief, it would thereby save an enormous amount which the people have now to pay in the shape of illegal gratifications. Immunity to the public from "dik" and worry will alone more than compensate the expenditure incurred, which will not exceed 2 lakhs per annum at the outside, including the salary of the members, their travelling allowances, and cost of establishment, etc. It is possible that my proposals may be opposed by some officers on the grounds of prestige and interference, but if my suggestions are carefully considered, it will not be difficult to realise that the activities of the Board, if anything, will tend to enhance the prestige of the different services; while the nature and mode of their functions will provide the officers with a reliable agency to secure first-hand information which will enable them to exercise a better control and supervision over their subordinates. Under these circumstances, any opposition will be tantamount to evading the important issues involved."

72. There is no doubt that the mere existence of a board of the kind would have an excellent deterrent effect. The British members of the Committee consider, however, that its constitution would not be an easy matter. The work would be of a disagreeable character and would involve a constant succession of tours. An officer, who had retired under the age-limit, would find the constant travelling a severe strain, while men, who had deliberately resigned, would not be tempted to return to India to take up a post of far less attraction than the one they would have occupied had they continued in the service. There is also a danger that, even could such a board be constituted, public co-operation would be lacking and without such co-operation the efforts of the board would be nugatory. They entirely concur, however, with the concluding words :—

"The present bitterness of feeling against the Government servants and the misgivings in the mind of the people about Government must be removed at all costs for the sake of every one concerned. A change of attitude on the part of the Government and a desire to employ means which will show tangible results will have the desired effect."

If these results cannot be attained with the help of the other suggestions contained in this report, we think the experiment might be tried for a limited period provided that the services of suitable pensioners can be obtained and that some assurance is received that co-operation on the part of the public will be readily forthcoming.

73. Writes de la Rochefoucauld :—" La promptitude a croire le mal sans l'avoir examiné est un effet de l'orgueil et de la paresse. " (Readiness to believe evil without proper investigation is an outcome of arrogance and laziness.) The Police Department has become the Ishmael of the Province and persons desirous of exhibiting their powers of invective are always sure of an appreciative audience when their diatribes are directed against it. Criticism within just limits is not only a corrective but a valuable stimulant, but as in the case of other stimulants excess is certain to produce undesirable consequences. When it is based on ignorance or prejudice, it defeats its own ends. Wholesale condemnation discourages the honest exception; he begins to wonder whether he is not a fool. He finds himself tarred with the same brush as his dishonest fellows and obtains none of their advantages. In his case virtue is indeed its own (and only) reward. No surprise need be felt that in such circumstances only a few retain their integrity. Moreover, the constant vituperation seriously affects recruitment. Men of family will not risk their good name by allowing their sons to come forward as candidates and the service is thus deprived of the very material which would be most beneficial both to it and the public. Any improvements that have been suggested will fail of their effect unless the department is given a fair chance and we appeal to all who have the interest of the general welfare at heart to ensure that this chance be not withheld.

CHAPTER VI.

SUMMARY SHOWING COST OF PROPOSALS.

74. The financial results of the proposals we have made in this report appear from the statements appended, and are briefly as follows :—

The creation of a reserve of Sergeants amounting to 7 men and at the rate of pay we have suggested will cost, in pay, Rs. 14,669 per annum.

We have suggested the creation of 710 Assistant Sub-Inspectors, and an increase in the number of constables of 777 men, the present force being reduced by 1 Inspector, 11 Sub-Inspectors, 81 head constables, 4 mounted head constables, and 5 mounted constables. The average pay of the 710 Assistant Sub-Inspectors will amount to Rs. 4,45,347 per annum, and that of the constables to Rs. 2,07,846 per annum at the rates we have proposed. The cost of the establishment it is proposed to reduce is

Rs. 51,192 per annum and the net increase under the heading "pay of establishment" of the whole of our proposals in regard to the existing force works out at Rs. 16,98,100 per annum. With the addition of contingencies, travelling and conveyance allowances, clothing and equipment, etc., the total increased expenditure will be Rs. 21,74,823 per annum.

We have dealt with the substitution in towns of watchmen by Police quite separately from the force as it now exists, and our proposals to make such substitution in towns with a population of not less than 5,000 inhabitants, will involve additions to the force of 60 head constables and 609 constables. The annual cost of this force, at the proposed rates of pay will be Rs. 1,89,780 and the total cost, including clothing, equipment and other contingencies, Rs. 2,16,117 per annum.

PART II.

Reasons for proposed decrease or increase to the existing strength of Police Establishment.

Railway Police.

The proposals for the Railway Police make minor alterations in the location of the force, including the posting of men on railway stations at the headquarters of district where hitherto there have been none and the location of a new police station at Jakhal in place of the present post, that at Lohian Khas being reduced to a post. In addition extra provision is made for patrols on night trains and for a reserve at the strength allotted in all districts. The result is a proposed increase of 3 Sergeants, 5 Sub-Inspectors, and 42 Head Constables, and a decrease of 39 Constables.

C. I. D. and Finger Print Bureau.

The only alteration in the strength of the staff of the C. I. D., which we recommend, is the addition of 2 Sub-Inspectors and 1 Head Constable to the Bureau staff to enable them to keep pace with the work of scrutinising the record and removing from it slips that need no longer be retained.

The civil work of the Bureau has increased enormously and therewith the earnings of the Bureau, and it is essential to keep the numbers of slips on record within workable limits.

As regards the executive staff of the C. I. D., we think the principle that should be adopted is to meet emergencies in the way of waves of crime or of political ferment by temporary additions to the staff of the department to be drawn from districts and not to swell the numbers of the normal staff permanently.

Punjab Government Notifications and Orders.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The 14th October 1926.

No. 84.—The Punjab Medical Registration (Amendment) Bill is published under the provisions of Rule 18 of the Punjab Legislative Council Rules for general information.

Notification No. 80, dated the 24th August 1926, is hereby cancelled.

A Bill to amend the Punjab Medical Registration Act, 1916.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Punjab Medical Registration Act, 1916, in the manner hereinafter appearing, it is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Punjab Medical Registration (Amendment) Act, 1926.

(2) It shall come into force on such date as the Local Government may by notification appoint in this behalf.

Amendment of section 5 of the Punjab Medical Registration Act, 1916.

2. In section 5 of the Punjab Medical Registration Act, 1916—

(i) in sub-section (1) for the word "thirteen" the word "sixteen" shall be substituted ; and

(ii) for clause (b) of the same sub-section the following clause shall be substituted, namely :—

"(b) Eight members nominated by the Local Government, of whom one shall be an independent medical practitioner practising in the Punjab, two shall be persons recommended by the Chief Commissioner, North-West Frontier Province, and one shall be a person recommended by the Chief Commissioner, Delhi."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE question of providing a registration system for medical practitioners practising in the Delhi Province and in the North-West Frontier Province has been under the consideration of the Government of India for some time past ; but it has not been considered desirable to have separate medical councils for these two Provinces. No residential qualifications are prescribed under section 13 of the Punjab Medical Registration Act, 1916, and medical practitioners living in Delhi and the North-West Frontier Provinces can be registered under the Act if they fulfil the necessary conditions. As cases relating to such practitioners under sections 13 and 16 of the Act will come before the Punjab Medical Council it is considered desirable that the registered practitioners of those two Provinces should also be represented on the Council. It is therefore proposed to amend the constitution of the Council so that there may be two representatives from the North-West Frontier Province and one representative from the Delhi Province. The appointments will be made by the Punjab Government on the recommendations of the Administrations concerned.

Member-in-charge.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT

GENERAL.

The 8th November 1926.

No. 32899.—In partial supersession of Punjab Government Finance Department notification No. 7019, dated 7th March 1922, the Finance Department of the Local Government is pleased to declare that the Financial Rules contained in the Punjab Education Code, Eleventh Edition, shall be regarded as having been framed under rule 37 (e) of the Devolution Rules.

H. W. EMERSON,
Secretary to Government, Punjab,
Finance Department.

Proceedings of the Government of the Punjab in the Finance Department No. 33118, dated the 10th November 1926.

THE Secretary of State for India having, under the rules published with Government of India, Department of Industries and Labour, notification No. S-420, dated the 7th January 1926, authorised local Governments to prescribe rules to regulate the purchase of stores and stationery for Governors' provinces, the Governor in Council and the Punjab Government (Ministry of Agriculture) are pleased to prescribe the rules appended to this resolution which will henceforward regulate the purchase of stores by all departments and officers of the Punjab Government.

2. The main features of the new rules consist in the assertion of a definite preference for stores produced and manufactured wholly or partly in India, of an important extension of the powers to purchase imported stores and of the utilisation of the agency of the Indian Stores Department, which has now been constituted on a permanent basis.

3. These rules should be taken as superseding, so far as provincial departments and officers under the administrative control of the Punjab Government are concerned, the rules in Appendix 4 to the Civil Account Code, volume I :—

RULES FOR THE SUPPLY OF ARTICLES FOR THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

PREAMBLE.

THE policy of the Punjab Government is to make their purchases of stores for the public service in such a way as to encourage the industries of the country, so far as is consistent with economy and efficiency. In pursuance of this policy the following rules are prescribed for the supply of articles for the public service. These rules, which are subject to any instructions regarding specific articles which have been or may be made by the Punjab Government from time to time (e.g., those relating to the supply of stationery and printing stores for the public service), supersede all previous orders which are not explicitly continued :—

RULE 1.—Articles manufactured in India from Indian materials.

All articles which are produced in India in the form of raw material, or are manufactured in India from materials produced in India should, in preference to articles not manufactured in India or wholly or partly manufactured in India from imported materials, be purchased locally, provided that the quality is sufficiently good for the purpose, and the price reasonable.

Note.—Although a strict comparison of prices is not enjoined by this rule, it is essential in the interest of economy that the purchasing officer should take into consideration, so far as may be possible, the price at which articles of similar quality not manufactured or produced in India can be purchased at the time.

RULE 2.—Articles manufactured in India from imported materials.

Articles wholly or partly manufactured in India from imported materials should also be purchased in India in preference to articles not manufactured in India, provided that the quality is sufficiently good and the price not unfavourable.

RULE 3.—Articles which are not manufactured in India.

Articles which are not manufactured in India should be obtained by indent upon the Store Department, London, except in the following cases :—

(a) When the articles are already in India at the time of order or are already on their way out, and their price and quality are not unfavourable as compared with those at which similar articles could be obtained through the Store Department, London, and the cost of the supply does not exceed the limits prescribed in Rule 11. When the total value of the articles required is trifling it is generally desirable to purchase them locally.

(b) In the case of important construction works let out on contract, articles not manufactured in India required for the construction of such works may be supplied by the contracting firm subject to the following conditions :—

(i) That the firm is approved by the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department, and is included in the list of firms so approved,—(vide List I referred to in the rules for the supply of articles for departments and officers of the Central Government).

(ii) That the materials are subject to the current specifications and tests prescribed by the Government of India.

(c) Plant and machinery and component parts thereof may be purchased from branches* established in India of manufacturing firms borne on the list of the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department,—(vide List II referred to in the rules for the supply of articles for departments and officers of the Central Government),—provided that the following conditions are observed :—

(i) That the purchase is made by the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department.

(ii) That the plant and machinery are of standard patterns such as are ordinarily manufactured by the firm, and have actually been so manufactured.

(iii) That the branch firm entertains a staff of expert mechanics capable, when so required, of erecting and repairing the plant and machinery which it supplies.

(iv) That the actual price of the articles (exclusive of any expenditure representing cost of erection) is as low as that at which articles of the same make can be supplied by the Store Department, London.

(v) That when test or inspection of the plant or machinery during manufacture or before shipment is necessary or desirable arrangements are made for such test and inspection to be carried out by the India Store Department, London.

Note 1.—It should clearly be understood by indenting officers that this rule is subject to the preference which should be given under Rules 1 and 2 to articles of Indian manufacture.

Note 2.—Application for inclusion in the list mentioned in this rule should be made to the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department, direct by the firm with a full statement of the reasons which in its opinion justify such inclusion.

RULE 4.—Articles which should be purchased in India.

The following articles, whether manufactured or produced in India or not, should be purchased in India provided that they comply with the current specifications, are of the requisite quality, and can be obtained at a not unfavourable price :—

(a) Those of a perishable nature.

(b) Explosives.

(c) Block tin.

(d) Wines and spirits and bottled beer for the use of Government hospitals in the Punjab.

(e) Kerosine oil.

(f) Plant and materials for electric installations intended to take current from existing centres; and small electrical power and lighting plants of not more than 25 killowatt capacity, which involve the provision of generators and cables for distribution, provided they comply with the current specifications and tests prescribed by the Government of India.

(g) Australian timber.

(h) Australian copper.

(i) Italian marble.

(j) British Columbian timber.

* Branches may be held to cover approved technical agents of manufactures who do not merely act as selling agents but are also in a position to render the same kind of technical assistance in India as actual branches of the firms.

(k) Plant and materials for small gas installations, the cost of which does not exceed Rs. 15,000.

(l) Cheap articles of common use required in small quantities only.

(m) African and Australian coal.

(n) Lubricating and fuel oil.

(o) Such other classes of articles that can be obtained more economically in the local market or that cannot conveniently be purchased through the agency of the London Store Department, as may from time to time be prescribed by the Punjab Government.

RULE 5.—Special Purchases in India.

In cases of emergency, or when inconvenience to the public service would be caused by waiting to obtain an article from England through the India Store Department, London, or when, owing to the greater promptitude of supply, an economy can be effected by purchasing in India articles which, under the foregoing rules, should be obtained through that Department, the purchase may be made in India, subject to the limits prescribed in Rule 11, provided that the articles are in India at the time of order or are already on their way out. In such cases, if the value of the article exceeds Rs. 1,500 the sanctioning officer should place on record the reasons which make the local purchase desirable. This record shall be available for the inspection of the Examiner of Accounts or the supervising officer, when required.

RULE 6.—Inter-departmental purchases.

Nothing in the rules is to be deemed to prohibit the purchase of stores by one department from another.

RULE 7.—Method of obtaining stores not purchased in India.

All articles which, under the foregoing rules, are not to be bought in India, should ordinarily be obtained by indent on the India Store Department, London, except those the purchase of which outside India is specially authorised by these rules. Such purchase is at present permissible in the case of the following articles :—

(i) Seeds.

(ii) Cinchona bark.

(iii) Articles for experimental or research purposes required by officers approved by the Government of the Punjab from time to time up to a limit of £50 in each case. The Finance Department of the local Government may in special cases remove the limit of £50 prescribed herein subject to the condition that no single article of which the estimated cost exceeds £50 shall be ordered from England otherwise than through the High Commissioner. A list of the officers thus approved is given in the Appendix.

(iv) Excise instruments and apparatus required by Excise Departments for experimental or research purposes.

(v) China, glass, cutlery, plate, crockery and perishable fabrics, including linen for residences which are furnished by Government.

(vi) Australian timber.

(vii) British Columbian timber.

(viii) Such articles as Superintendents of Vaccine Depôts may require for the preparation of vaccine lymph (e. g., lanoline and glycerine).

(ix) Chemicals and scientific instruments which do not require careful inspection and testing, or which are of standard description usually quoted by well-known firms, provided that the articles cannot be procured from the Medical Store Depôts.

(x) Articles required for His Excellency the Governor's residences in special and urgent cases.

Note.—Payments for stores purchased under this rule should be made direct to the suppliers by the purchasing officers.

RULE 8.—Method of comparing prices.

In all cases in which the selection of source of supply depends upon comparison of prices the procedure to be adopted for such a comparison is as follows :—

(i) A reference should be made to Home prices notified continually by the India Store Department, London, to the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department, or as otherwise ascertained, and freight should be added at the current rates paid by the India Store Department, London, together with such charges for interest, insurance, and freight brokerage as may be declared from time to time by the Chief Controller of Stores.

(ii) In cases of important contracts, the prices ruling in the English market should be ascertained by telegraphic reference to the India Store Department, London.

(iii) In cases where the necessary information as to Home prices is not available the purchase in India shall be subject to the condition that the price is reasonable.

(iv) In order to arrive at the market value at an Indian port of the article imported from England the following charges shall be included :—

(a) Landing, wharfage, and port charges.

(b) Customs duty as shown in the tariff to be applicable to the article in question, to be calculated on its cost plus the additional charges mentioned in the earlier part of this rule.

(v) The cost of carriage to site from port or place of manufacture, as the case may be, shall be taken into account.

RULE 9.—Tests.

Any articles purchased in India which should be tested are liable to the same specifications as are laid down from time to time by the Government of India, for the purchase of stores by officers and departments of the Central Government, and should be required to pass the test prescribed for such articles.

RULE 10.—Firms from which iron and steel may be bought in India.

Important iron and steel work, if purchased in India, should only be obtained from firms approved by the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department, and entered in a schedule as corrected from time to time by that officer,—(vide List III referred to in the rules for the supply of articles for departments and officers of the Central Government).

Note 1.—By "important iron or steel works" are meant articles of iron or steel which form important components of the project in hand, e. g., bridge girders and roof trusses, built up in the firm's workshops and supplied ready for erection, in such sections as may be convenient, and rolled steel beams, rails or other sections cut to length or otherwise prepared at the firm's workshops to suit the indenting officer's requirements. The intention of the rule is to ensure that parts, the accurate preparation of which is essential to the security of a project, shall be obtained only from firms which possess workshops and appliances capable of turning out work of the desired standard. The raw materials used may be either imported or of Indian manufacture, subject to the usual specifications.

Note 2.—For the procedure to be followed by firms desiring to be included in the list mentioned in this rule, see Note 2 to Rule 3.

RULE 11.—Financial limits on powers of officers to make purchases in India.

A Department or officer's financial powers in the matter of the purchase of stores ordinarily extend to the limits to which it or he is empowered to incur expenditure under this head as prescribed in the Book of Financial Powers ; but in the case of purchases made in India under rule 3 and rule 5, the limits up to which power to purchase any one article or any number of similar articles purchased at one time extends are as follows :—

In respect of rules 3 and 5.

The consent of the Finance Department is presumed to the exercise of the following powers to the extent specified, provided that the purchase of articles under rule 3 (c) shall, unless otherwise sanctioned by competent authority, be made through the Chief Controller of Stores, Indian Stores Department.

Punjab Government Notifications and Orders.

Obituary Notice.

THE Governor in Council has heard with deep regret of the death of the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Alfred Edward Martineau, I.C.S., which took place on Tuesday the 23rd November, 1926. The late Judge was born in 1868 and joined the Indian Civil Service in 1889. He was at the time of his death the senior member of that Service still on the active list in the Punjab. After some years' work as Assistant Commissioner, Officiating Deputy Commissioner and Registrar of the Chief Court, Mr. Martineau joined the Judicial Branch of the administration in which he spent the greater part of his service. He was first appointed as a Temporary Additional Judge of the Chief Court in 1918 and became a permanent Judge of the High Court in November, 1921.

Mr. Justice Martineau's work, not only in his capacity as a Judge of the High Court, but throughout his 37 years of service in the Punjab, was marked by industry and devotion to duty. He was gifted with a keen sense of justice and, both as a Sessions Judge and on the Bench of the High Court, he displayed an admirable independence of judgment in the discharge of the duties of his office. His relations with his colleagues on the Bench were characterised by cordiality and kindness, and he was popular with the members of the Bar, whom he treated with unfailing courtesy and consideration. His death is a serious loss to the Judiciary of the Province.

H. D. CRAIK,

Chief Secretary to Government, Punjab.

GENERAL.

The 12th November 1926.

No. 33287.—The following ceremonial of the Darbar held by His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India at Lahore on the 18th October 1926, is published for general information :—

1. On Monday, the 18th of October, at 11 A.M., His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India held, in the Diwan-i-'Am at the Lahore Fort, a Public Darbar for the reception of the principal Sardars and Indian Gentlemen of the Punjab. His Excellency drove to the Fort from Government House, via the Mall, the Gol Bagh, and the Shahdara Road. He was escorted by the Governor-General's Bodyguard, the 4th (Duke of Cambridge's Own) Hodson's Horse and 'P' Field Battery, Royal Artillery.

2. Civil and Military Officers of Government invited to attend the Darbar received tickets of admission.

3. All gentlemen attending the Darbar, except those who held tickets for Block A, were seated in the Darbar Hall by 10 A.M. They were shown to their seats by officers on duty. Gentlemen who held tickets for Block A were seated by 10-30 A.M., after which there was no admittance except for officers on duty at the Darbar.

4. His Excellency the Governor was seated on the dais on the left of His Excellency the Viceroy; and the personal staffs of His Excellency the Viceroy and His Excellency the Governor, stood at the back of the dais. The Provincial Darbaris were seated in the Darbar Hall according to their rank.

5. When all the gentlemen attending the Darbar had assembled, His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General arrived at the Diwan-i-'Am. As His Excellency's carriage reached a point about one hundred yards from the Guard of Honour of the 3-10th Baluch regiment, mounted outside the Diwan-i-'Am, the trumpeters of the Bodyguard sounded a fanfare. As the carriage reached the steps of the ramp the Bodyguard formed up facing the carriage between the carriage and the Guard of Honour, and His Excellency alighted from the near side of the carriage. The Bodyguard then gave the Royal Salute, all present in the Darbar Hall rising from their seats. At the same time a salute of 31 guns was fired from the open land in front of the Fort by "Z" Field Battery, Royal Artillery. After His Excellency had alighted, the carriage and the Bodyguard moved forward and the Guard of Honour gave a Royal Salute. After inspecting the Guard of Honour, His Excellency entered the Darbar Hall accompanied by His Excellency the Governor of the Punjab and attended by the Viceroy's and Governor's personal staffs, a procession being formed in the following order :—

- The Aides-de-Camp to His Excellency the Governor;
- The Aides-de-Camp to His Excellency the Viceroy;
- The Surgeon to His Excellency the Viceroy and the Private Secretary to His Excellency the Governor.
- His Excellency the Governor.
- His Excellency the Viceroy.
- The Private Secretary and the Military Secretary to His Excellency the Viceroy.

6. All present in the Darbar Hall remained standing until His Excellency the Viceroy had taken his seat.

7. After all had resumed their seats the Chief Secretary asked leave to declare the Darbar open.

8. The Provincial Darbaris were then presented to His Excellency the Viceroy by the Chief Secretary. As each Darbari was presented he offered his proper Nazar which was touched and remitted.

9. After the presentation, His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General rose to deliver the following address. All present rose at the same time, and remained standing until His Excellency permitted them to sit down. A translation of the address in Urdu was afterwards read by Lieutenant-Colonel

Nawab Sir Umar Hayat Khan, Tiwana, Honorary Aide-de-Camp to His Excellency the Viceroy :—

"CHIEFS, SARDARS AND GENTLEMEN OF THE PUNJAB,—

It is hardly necessary for me to say what great pleasure it has given me to hold a Darbar in this historic city, and to meet so many representative men of the Punjab during the first year of my Viceroyalty. In these days, when so many things are changing before our eyes, old-fashioned institutions such as Darbars are apt to fade into oblivion and disuse. Yet to my mind the purpose and value of a public Darbar, such as this, remain. It gives loyal subjects the chance openly to show their loyalty to the King-Emperor, and it enables me as his representative to meet them and publicly to commend those who stood by Government during the anxious years of war, and through the subsequent troubles from which this Province is now emerging. I can assure them all that their loyalty and devotion to the Crown are not forgotten. When I look on this great gathering of men from all parts of the Province—men who trace their ancestry to names famous in Indian history for the arts of peace and war—my mind inevitably goes back to similar scenes, which have taken place in past centuries in Lahore—some in this very fort, some even in this very audience hall. In no fitter place I think than in this audience chamber of the Emperor Akbar, could the Chiefs and leading men of this great fighting Province meet to welcome the representative of the King-Emperor.

Nearly ten years have passed since a Viceroy held a Darbar in this town. Those ten years have seen changes destined perhaps to be more far-reaching in their effects than any of the old struggles and invasions which ebbed and flowed over the Punjab in days gone by. A new dynasty has arisen, the dynasty of the people themselves. New powers and new responsibilities are in your hands, and I am confident that you, whom I address to-day, will assist your Province to use those powers and responsibilities with wisdom. Critics of this new development there have been plenty, but I am glad to think that the Punjab has proved that, if handled in the spirit of constructive effort and good-will, this form of Government can be at once the instrument of valuable training in the business of administration, and the means of securing improvement in those matters, on which the lives of the great mass of the people principally depend. The harmonious working of the Reforms in this Province is, I make no doubt, due largely to the qualities of shrewdness and common-sense which have distinguished the representatives whom the people of the Punjab have sent to their Legislative Council, and to the degree to which Ministers have recognised the importance of directing the attention of their supporters to practical problems which await solution. I have been glad to hear of how popular interest in all branches of the administration has been quickened, especially in what are known as the "beneficent departments" such as Agriculture, Education and Public Health. It is that growth of an informed and practical interest in these vital matters, that is likely, in India as elsewhere, to afford the surest foundation for effective political advance. I feel sure, Gentlemen, that in the Punjab we shall not look for it in vain.

The times which saw the inauguration of these constitutional changes were difficult. As we look back across the last few years, we cannot fail to be struck by the contrast that they have presented with the period of repose, of which an exhausted world dreamed and for which it craved, as it passed through the furnace of four years of war. For, like nearly every other civilised country, India felt the influence of that spirit of fretful unrest which followed on the heels of war, and in this Province a combination of untoward circumstances—political and economic—contributed to a troublous period, in which for a time crime rose above its normal level. Those days are past, and I fervently hope that, during my Viceroyalty and for many years to come, the stream of administration will flow smoothly on. It is a matter of deep satisfaction that the essential parts of the machinery set up by the Gurdwaras Act last summer are now in working order, and that statutory provision has been made for the management of Sikh religious institutions. I am pleased to be able to announce that the restrictions on Sikh recruiting for the Indian Army from certain villages are being steadily relaxed, and that in the happier atmosphere which now prevails there is every prospect of their being entirely removed within a few months. I sincerely hope therefore that the troubles which have till recently disturbed the great Sikh community, a community with such high traditions of bravery in the field and of loyalty to the British Crown, are about to give way to an era of orderly progress and prosperity. You know, even better than I, how much of the credit for this happier state of affairs, as indeed for much else in your Province, is due to your distinguished Governor, Sir Malcolm Hailey.

Speaking of the Punjab in general I am glad to say that the last year or two have been years of peace and swift development. The colonization of vast areas of Crown lands, which have been brought under irrigation, has not only given relief to congested districts, but has promoted a more equable distribution of agricultural wealth. The great Nili Bar Colony Project now approaching completion will add nearly a million acres in British India to the canal-irrigated area. Railway expansion is proceeding rapidly, and during the present year no less than six projects have been sanctioned. Special attention is also being paid to the development of road communication, which should bring great benefit to the more backward areas. The great Hydro-Electric Project which has just been started is likely profoundly to influence the industrial development of the Province, and will give greater opportunities to those qualities of initiative and pertinacity for which the Punjabi is famous. But you have not only moved forward along lines of material progress. The Province has in the last six years seen an advance in education which is unexampled in its previous history. In the field of co-operative credit and banking where unity brings new strength to those, who alone are unable to command resources adequate to ensure economic freedom, it is reaching a foremost position in India. Its improving finances have not only permitted some reduction of the taxation imposed in time of exceptional stress, but have enabled Ministers to make an effective start in liberally conceived programmes of medical relief, and in the expansion of its Health and Agricultural Departments.

I was much concerned, on my arrival in India, to learn that your Province was suffering from an unusually violent attack of plague. Thanks to the successful working of the new Public Health organization and the intensive campaign of preventive measures in which the people so readily co-operated, the chief danger is now past. I wish however to express my sympathy with those who suffered by this epidemic, and my hope that you will not be called upon to face such a serious visitation of this scourge again for many years.

Agriculture is, as you know, a matter of particular and personal concern to me, and I therefore take a special interest in the Punjab and in its rural population. I was deeply disappointed in April that I was unable to visit Suleimanke and perform the opening ceremony of the headworks there. I should have liked to feel that I had had some direct part in one of those magnificent schemes of irrigation which have made the Punjab canals one of the wonders of the world. By these triumphs of engineering skill you are enabled to reap one of the almost unique advantages with which the Punjab has been endowed. To much of your Province Nature has surely dispensed her gifts with generous hand. You have nature's own reservoir of water in the snow and ice of your great mountain ranges. You have level plains with soil of natural richness; you have great heat which, though it may at times sorely try the human frame and the human temper, stimulates those chemical and physical changes in the soil which are essential to plant life. Your land unaided is able therefore to yield you crop after crop which under similar conditions in England and many other countries would be impossible. It may be that, in spite of all that science has taught us in recent years, there are still land-owners in the Punjab who take these natural gifts as a matter of course and are slow to enquire how far human endeavour may be able to enhance the value of nature's gifts. Some may be tempted to say "what I have is good enough". But, Gentlemen, nothing is good enough if it can be made a little better.

The farmer is, of course, by nature a conservative. It is right that he should be so. He has inherited precious knowledge from those who have tilled the soil before him; and we do wrong if we hold the accumulated wisdom of our predecessors as of light account. The farmer knows, too, the danger of a single failure ; the danger to himself, to his family, to his cattle and other stock. The small man therefore, who is constantly depending on fine margins and who is bound above all to tread the path of safety, will be naturally and rightly reluctant to embark on new lines in his farming operations. But it is the duty of those, who by position and circumstance are the natural leaders of agricultural enterprise, to be the pioneers of improvement, by experiment, by co-operation, by demonstration, and by using their local influence to encourage their humbler neighbours to translate into working practice the approved discoveries of scientific study. A spirit of enquiry is already abroad, but I think that there may still be room for a greater spirit of adventure, and a more determined ambition to leave your land to your sons a little better than you found it. I was astonished to learn recently a fact, which I have no doubt is well-known to many of you, that from a single cotton plant given out for cultivation 18 years ago as the result of scientific selection at the Lyallpur Farm no less than 960,0 0 acres have now been planted. That one fact alone is to me ample proof of the almost romantic results that may be attained by the application of scientific enquiry and analysis to agricultural problems, and I am confident that the Royal Commission on Agriculture, which has just started on its labours, will show us the way to further progress in many matters closely affecting the prosperity of our agricultural community.

In dwelling on the great possibilities of development in the canal colonies I have not forgotten those parts of the Punjab which are not blessed with the same bounties of nature and which I fear can never hope to come under canal irrigation. My interest is not less direct in those less fortunate areas which trust for their prosperity to precarious rains. I shall always be glad to learn of any well-devised schemes such as the improvement of lift irrigation, or any other, which will help to secure those who live in these tracts from the calamities arising from nature's waywardness.

It affords me especial pleasure to see many here to day who have served and are still serving in those regiments which have made the Punjab famous throughout the world as a nursery of fighting men. You of the Punjab have always been a race of soldiers. Fate has placed your lands on the high road from the hungry uplands of the North to the rich plains of Hindustan, and your five rivers have often run red with the blood of your ancestors and of the invaders they struggled to repel. British arms too have in the past had full test of the fighting powers of the Punjab, but fair battle leaves no bitterness behind, and I believe that we understand each other all the better to-day for our struggles in the past. Who indeed could think otherwise, who turns his thoughts back to 12 years ago and calls to mind that wonderful climax to the epic of Punjab chivalry which no Briton worthy of the name will ever forget—the response which all India, but above all the Punjab, made to the Imperial call to arms in the great war. There are many of you here to-day who offered lives and property in the service of the King-Emperor and there must be few who did not suffer the loss of a son or a brother or a friend. I feel proud to be able to add my meed of homage to those who made the supreme sacrifice in those stern days, and to acknowledge once again the splendid service which all classes in the Punjab rendered to the British Empire. The same spirit of loyalty has summoned this distinguished company to assemble here to-day I on my part have welcomed the opportunity of meeting those who are the worthy representatives of honourable traditions, and on whose fidelity and public spirit the prosperity of the Punjab must constantly depend."

10. The Chief Secretary then obtained the permission of His Excellency the Viceroy to close the Darbar.

11. Subsequently His Excellency the Viceroy left the Darbar Hall with the same ceremony as on arrival, the salute of 31 guns being repeated.

12. After His Excellency the Viceroy had left the Darbar Hall Her Excellency the Lady Irwin and Lady Hailey, who watched the Darbar from a balcony behind the dais, descended from the balcony and took their departure. Gentlemen attending the Darbar were requested to remain standing by their seats until Her Excellency had left the Darbar Hall.

13. Levée dress was worn by Civil Officials entitled to wear uniform. Other gentlemen appeared in morning dress. Military Officers wore review order with medals. Indian gentlemen wore the dress which they ordinarily wear on high ceremonial occasions.

FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

GENERAL.

The 3rd December 1926.

No. 35955.—The Finance Department of the Local Government is pleased under rule 7 of the Fundamental Rules to make the following amendments in the orders appearing in paragraphs 21·3 and 21·4 of the Subsidiary Rules (other than Travelling Allowance Rules), Volume II of Punjab Financial Handbook No. 2—which declare the cases in which its consent may be presumed to have been given to the exercise of the powers of the Local Government under the Fundamental Rules and Subsidiary Rules made thereunder by the Governor-in-Council or the Ministry of Agriculture or the Ministry of Education in respect of Government servants serving under their control :—

(i) Omit Serial No. 13-A of paragraph 21·3.

(ii) Omit Serial No. 13-B. of paragraph 21·3.

(iii) For paragraph 21·4 substitute the following :—

21·4. It should be noted that the assent of the Finance Department is only presumed to the grant of premature increments by the authority which is competent to create a post in the same cadre on the same scale of pay. Following the principle previously laid down in Article 153, Civil Service Regulations, a proposal to grant an increment of progressive pay in advance of the due date should always be scrutinized with special jealousy as it is contrary to the principle of a time-scale of pay to grant an increment before it is due. Such a grant will not be advised for by the Finance Department excepting in the very rare circumstances which would justify a personal pay to a Government servant whose pay is fixed. The guiding principles made by the Punjab Government (Ministry of Education) for the grant of premature increments to officers of the Provincial Medical Service are laid down in appendix J.

H. W. EMERSON,

Secretary to Government, Punjab,

For rule 4·10 (ii) substitute the following :—

(ii) For a migratory Government servant—

(a) who occupies a Government house at Lahore, but not at Simla, the period of allotment shall be from the date on which the Government offices open at Lahore to the date on which the Government offices open at Simla;

(b) who occupies a Government house at Simla, but not at Lahore, the period of allotment shall be the date from which the Government offices open at Simla to the date on which the Government Offices open at Lahore.

Statement E gives the anticipated income and expenditure of the Electrical Department under the scheme, on the success of which the loan is financially based.

Passing of the final edition of the budget by the Board.

9. (1) The second edition of the budget shall in due course be laid before the Board by the Chairman of the Finance Committee, who after explaining the estimates of income and expenditure and the manner in which the sum available for expenditure over and above the sum required to meet sanctioned charges has been allocated, shall move separate resolutions for grants of the amounts required for expenditure in each department.

(2) Any member may move an amendment to any resolution for a grant for any department for the purpose of cutting down the amount of such grant, but no amendment may be moved at this stage for the purpose of increasing the grant demanded for any department.

(3) When all such resolutions and amendments have been decided, if any surplus is available for expenditure owing to reductions having been made in the amounts of the grants demanded for any departments, any member may move a resolution for the allocation of the whole or a part of such surplus to any department of which the grant demanded has not been reduced ; and when all such resolutions have been decided the Chairman of the Finance Committee shall move a resolution that the budget as modified by the resolutions of the Board be approved, and two copies of the budget so approved shall be forwarded to the prescribed authority.

(2) Expenditure in excess of the amount provided in the budget under any head subordinate to a departmental head may be incurred with the sanction of the Board if the necessary funds can be provided by transfer from any other head subordinate to the same departmental head.

2. For signature, see rule 1 on the back of the form.

SUPPLY OF MATERIALS.

TENDER AND CONDITIONS.

TENDER FOR THE SUPPLY OF MATERIALS.

CONDITIONS OF CONTRACT.

1. The person whose tender is accepted (hereinafter called the Contractor) shall within ten days of the receipt by him of the notification of the acceptance of his tender deposit with the District Engineer in cash a sum sufficient with the amount of the earnest-money deposited by him with his tender to make up the full security deposit or (B) [permit the District Board of—(hereinafter called the Board) at the time of making any payment to him for work done under the contract to deduct such sum as will (with the earnest-money deposited by him) amount to 10 per cent. of all moneys so payable, such deductions to be held by the Board by way of security deposit.] Provided always that in the event of the contractor depositing a lump sum by way of security deposit as contemplated at (A) above, then and in such case, if the sum so deposited shall not amount to 10 per cent. of the total estimated cost of the materials to be supplied, it shall be lawful for District Boards at the time of making any payment to the Contractor for work done under the contract to make up the full percentage of 10 per cent. by deducting a sufficient sum from every such payment as last aforesaid. All compensation or other sums of money payable by the Contractor to District Board under the terms of his contract may be deducted from, or paid by the sale of a sufficient part of his security deposit, or from the interest arising therefrom, or from any sums which may be due or may become due to the Contractor by District Board on any account whatsoever, and in the event of his security deposit being reduced by reason of any such deduction or sale as aforesaid, the Contractor shall within ten days thereafter make good in cash or Government securities endorsed as aforesaid any sum or sums which may have been deducted from or raised by sale of his security deposit or any part thereof.

2. The Contractor is to deliver the materials on or before the date or dates mentioned in the tender, and if he fails to do so, he shall be liable to pay or allow one per cent. of the total amount of the contract for every day that shall elapse after such date or dates and before the delivery of the materials as and for liquidated damages and such amount may be deducted from any sums due to him.

3. In every case in which a failure to deliver the material on or before the dates specified in the tender has occurred the District Engineer shall in addition to or substitution for the payment, allowance or deductions referred to in clause 2 hereof have power either to annul the contract altogether, or to have the supply completed without further notice at the Contractor's risk and expense, as he may deem best suited to the interests of Board, and the Contractor shall have no claim to compensation for any loss that he may thus incur in any way.

4. If the Contractor shall be hindered in the supply of the materials so as to necessitate an extension of the time allowed in this tender, he shall apply in writing to the District Engineer, who shall grant such extension in writing if reasonable grounds be shown for it, and without such written authority of the District Engineer, the Contractor shall not be exempt from the fine leviable under clause 2.

5. The Contractor shall give notice to the District Engineer of his intention of making delivery of materials, and, on the materials being approved, a receipt shall be granted to him by the District Engineer and no material will be considered as delivered until so approved.

6. On the completion of the delivery of materials, the Contractor shall be furnished with a certificate that, the materials have been delivered but the delivery shall not be considered complete until the Contractor shall have removed all rejected materials, and shall have had the approved materials stacked or placed in such position as may be pointed out to him.

7. The material shall be of the best description and in strict accordance with the specification, and the Contractor shall receive payment for such materials only as are approved and passed by the District Engineer.

8. In the event of the material being considered by the District Engineer to be inferior to that described in the specification, the Contractor shall on demand in writing, forthwith remove the same at his own charge and cost, and in the event of his neglecting to do so within such period as may be named by the District Engineer, that officer may have such rejected material removed at the Contractor's risk and expense, the expense incurred being liable to be deducted from any sums due, or which may become due, to the Contractor.

9. If the Contractor or any person employed by him breaks or defaces or otherwise injures any building, road, fence, enclosure, grass land or cultivated land, he shall make good the breakage, defacement or other injury at his own expense, and in the event of his refusing or failing to do so, the damage shall be repaired at his expense by the District Engineer, who shall deduct the cost from any sums due, or which may become due, to the Contractor.

10. The Contractor shall supply at his own expense all tools, plant, and implements required for the due fulfilment of his contract, and the material shall remain at his risk till the date for final delivery, unless it shall have been in the meantime removed for use by the District Engineer or under his orders.

11. No materials shall be brought to site or delivered on a Sunday without the written permission of the District Engineer.

12. CONDITIONS OF CONTRACT.

Security deposit.

Clause I.—The person/persons whose tender may be accepted (hereinafter called the contractor) shall, (A) [within ten days of the receipt by him of the notification of the acceptance of his tender, deposit with the District Engineer in cash or Government securities endorsed to the District Engineer (if deposited for more than 12 months) a sum sufficient with the amount of the earnest-money deposited by him with his tender to make up the full security deposit specified in tender] ; or (B) [permit the District Board at the time of making any payment to him for work done under the contract to deduct such sum as will (with the earnest-money deposited by him) amount to ten per cent. of all moneys so payable, such deductions to be held by the District Board by way of security deposit.] All compensation or other sums of money payable by the contractor to the District Board under the terms of his contract may be deducted from, or paid by the sale of a sufficient part of his security deposit, or from the interest arising therefrom, or from any sums which may be due or may become due to the contractor by the District Board on any account whatsoever, and in the event of his security deposit being reduced by reason of any such deduction or sale as aforesaid, the contractor shall within ten days thereafter make good in cash or Government securities endorsed as aforesaid any sum or sums which may have been deducted from, or raised by sale of his security deposit or any part thereof.

Compensation for delay.

Clause 2.—The time allowed for carrying out the work as entered in the tender shall be strictly observed by the contractor and shall be reckoned from the date on which the order to commence work is given to the contractor. The work shall throughout the stipulated period of the contract be proceeded with with all due diligence (time being deemed to be of the essence of the contract on the part of the contractor) and the contractor shall pay as compensation an amount equal to one per cent., or such smaller amount as the District Board (whose decision in writing shall be final) may decide, on the amount of the estimated cost of the whole work as shown by the tender for every day that the work remains uncommenced, or unfinished, after the proper dates. And further, to ensure good progress during the execution of the work, the contractor shall be bound, in all cases in which the time allowed for any work exceeds one month, to complete one-fourth of the whole of the work before one-fourth of the whole time allowed under the contract has elapsed; one-half of the work, before one half of such time has elapsed, and three-fourths of the work, before three-fourths of such time has elapsed. In the event of the contractor failing to comply with this condition he shall be liable to pay as compensation an amount equal to one per cent. or such smaller amount as the District Board (whose decision in writing shall be final) may decide on the said estimated cost of the whole work for every day that the due quantity of work remains incomplete : Provided always that the entire amount of compensation to be paid under the provisions of this clause shall not exceed ten per cent. on the estimated cost of the work as shown in the tender.

Action when whole of security deposit is forfeited.

Clause 3.—In any case in which under any clause or clauses of this contract the contractor shall have rendered himself liable to pay compensation amounting to the whole of his security deposit (whether paid in one sum or deducted by instalments) the District Engineer, on behalf of the District Board, shall have power to adopt any of the following courses, as he may deem best suited to the interests of the Board :—

(a) To rescind the contract of which rescission notice in writing to the contractor under the hand of the District Engineer shall be conclusive evidence, and in which case the security deposit of the contractor shall stand forfeited, and be absolutely at the disposal of the District Board.

(b) To employ labour paid by the District Works Department and to supply materials to carry out the work, or any part of the work, debiting the contractor with the cost of the labour and the price of the materials (as to the amount of which cost and price a certificate of the District Engineer shall be final and conclusive against the contractor) and crediting him with the value of the work done, in all respects in the same manner and at the same rates as if it had been carried out by the contractor under the terms of his contract : the certificate of the District Engineer as to the value of the work done shall be final and conclusive against the contractor.

(c) To measure up the work of the contractor, and to take such part thereof as shall be unexecuted out of his hands, and to give it to another contractor to complete, in which case any expenses which may be incurred in excess of the sum which would have been paid to the original contractor, if the whole work had been executed by him as to the amount of which excess the certificate in writing of the District Engineer shall be final and conclusive) shall be borne and paid by the original contractor and may be deducted from any money due to him by the District Board undethe contract or otherwise, or from his security deposit or the proceeds of sale thereof, or a sufficient part thereof.

In the event of any of the above courses being adopted by the District Engineer, the contractor shall have no claim to compensation for any loss sustained by him by reason of his having purchased or procured any materials, or entered into any engagements, or made any advances on account of, or with a view to the execution of the work or the performance of the contract: and in the case the contract shall be rescinded under the provision aforesaid, the contractor shall not be entitled to recover or be paid any sum for any work theretofore actually performed under this contract, unless and until the District Engineer shall have certified in writing the performance of such work and the value payable in respect thereof, and the contractor shall only be entitled to be paid the value so certified. Contractor remains liable to pay compensation if action not taken under clause 3.

Clause 4.—In any case in which any of the powers, conferred upon the District Engineer by clause 3 hereof, shall have become exercisable and the same shall not be exercised, the non-exercise thereof shall not constitute waiver of any of the conditions hereof and such powers shall notwithstanding be exercisable in the event of any future case of default by the contractor for which by any clause or clauses hereof he is declared liable to pay compensation amounting to the whole of his security deposit, and the liability of the contractor for past and future compensation shall remain unaffected. In the event of the District Engineer putting in force either of the powers (a) or (c) vested in him under the preceding clause he may, if he so desire, take possession of all or any tools, plant, materials and stores, in or upon the works, or the site thereof or belonging to the contractor, or procured by him and intended to be used for the execution of the work or any part thereof, paying or allowing for the same in account at the contract rates, or, in case of these not being applicable at current market rates to be certified by the District Engineer whose certificate thereof shall be final, otherwise the District Engineer may by notice in writing to the contractor or his clerk of the works, foreman or other authorized agent require him to remove such tools, plant, materials, or stores from the premises within a time to be specified in such notice); and in the event of the contractor failing to comply with any such requisition, the District Engineer may remove them at the contractor's expense or sell them by auction or private sale on account of the contractor and at his risk in all respects, and the certificate of the District Engineer as to the expense of any such removal, and the amount of the proceeds and expense of any such sale shall be final and conclusive against the contractor. Power to take possession of or require removal of or sell contractor's plant.

Clause 5.—If the contractor shall desire an extension of the time for completion of the work on the grounds of his having been unavoidably hindered in its execution or on any other ground, he shall apply in writing to the District Engineer within 30 days of the date of the hindrance on account of which he desires such extension aforesaid, and the District Engineer shall, if in his opinion (which shall be final) reasonable grounds be shown herefor, authorize such extension of time, if any, as may, in his opinion, be necessary or proper. Extension of time.

Final certificate.

Clause 6.—On completion of the work, the contractor shall be furnished with a certificate by the Engineer-in-charge of such completion, but no such certificate shall be given, nor shall the work be considered to be complete until the contractor shall have removed from the premises on which work shall be executed all scaffolding, surplus materials and rubbish, and cleaned off the dirt from all wood-work, doors, windows, walls, floors, or other parts of any building, in, upon or about which the work is to be executed, or of which he may have had possession for the purpose of the execution thereof, or until the work shall have been measured by the Engineer-in-charge whose measurements shall be binding and conclusive against the contractor. If the contractor shall fail to comply with the requirements of this clause as to removal of scaffolding, surplus materials and rubbish, and cleaning off of dirt on or before the date fixed for the completion of the work, the Engineer-in-charge may at the expense of the contractor remove such scaffolding, surplus materials and rubbish and dispose of the same as he thinks fit and clean off such dirt as aforesaid; and the contractor shall forthwith pay the amount of all expense so incurred, and shall have no claim in respect of any such scaffolding or surplus materials as aforesaid except for any sum actually realized by the sale thereof.

Payments on intermediate certificates to be regarded as advances.

Clause 7.—No payments shall be made for works estimated to cost less than rupees one thousand, till after the whole of the works shall have been completed and a certificate of completion given. But in the case of works estimated to cost more than rupees one thousand, the contractor shall on submitting the bill therefor be entitled to receive a monthly payment proportionate to the part thereof then approved and passed by the Engineer in-charge, whose certificate of such approval and passing of the sum so payable shall be final and conclusive against the contractor. But all such intermediate payments shall be regarded as payments by way of advance against the final payment only and not as payments for work actually done and completed, and shall not preclude the requiring of bad, unsound, and imperfect or unskilful work to be removed and taken away and re-constructed, or re-erected, or be considered as an admission of the due performance of the contract, or any part thereof in any respect, or the accruing of any claim, nor shall it conclude, determine, or affect in any way the powers of the Engineer-in-charge under these conditions or any of them as to the final settlement and adjustment of the accounts or otherwise, or in any other way vary or affect the contract. The final bill shall be submitted by the contractor within one month of the date fixed for completion of the work, otherwise the Engineer-in-charge's certificate of the measurement and of the total amount payable for the work accordingly shall be final and binding on all parties.

Bills to be submitted monthly.

Clause 8.—A bill shall be submitted by the contractor each month on or before the date fixed by the Engineer-in-charge for all work executed in the previous month, and the Engineer-in-charge shall take or cause to be taken the requisite measurements for the purpose of having the same verified, and the claim, so far as admissible, adjusted, if possible, before the expiry of ten days from the presentation of the bill. If the contractor does not submit the bill within the time fixed as aforesaid, the Engineer-in charge may depute a subordinate to measure up the said work in the presence of the contractor, whose countersignature to the measurement list will be sufficient warrant; and the Engineer-in-charge may prepare a bill from such list which shall be binding on the contractor in all respects.

Clause 9.—The contractor shall submit all bills on the printed forms to be had on application at the office of the Engineer-in-charge, and the charges in the bills shall always be entered at the rates specified in the tender or, in the case of any extra work ordered in pursuance of these conditions and not mentioned or provided for in the tender, at the rates hereinafter provided for such work.

Bills to be on printed forms.

Clause 10.—If the specification or estimate of the work provides for the use of any special description of materials to be supplied from the Engineer-in-charge's store, or if it is required that the contractor shall use certain stores to be provided by the Engineer-in-charge (such materials and stores, and the prices to be charged therefor as hereinafter mentioned being so far as practicable for the convenience of the contractor, but not so as in any way to control the meaning or effect of this contract, specified in the schedule or memorandum hereto annexed), the contractor shall be supplied with such materials and stores as required from time to time to be used by him for the purposes of the contract only, and the value of the full quantity of materials and stores so supplied at the rates specified in the said schedule or memorandum may be set off or deducted from any sums then due, or thereafter to become due to the contractor under the contract, or othewise, or against or from the security deposit, or the proceeds of sale thereof; if the same is held in Government securities, the same or a sufficient portion thereof being in this case sold for the purpose. All materials supplied to the contractor shall remain the absolute property of the District Board, and shall not on any account be removed from the site of the work, and shall at all times be open to inspection by the Engineer-in-charge. Any such materials unused and in perfectly good condition at the time of the completion or determination of the contract shall be returned to the Engineer-in-charge's store, if by a notice in writing under his hand he shall so require but the contractor shall not be entitled to return any such materials unless with such consent, and shall have no claim for compensation on account of any such materials so supplied to him as aforesaid being unused by him, or for any wastage in or damage to any such materials

Stores supplied by District Board.

Clause 11.—The contractor shall execute the whole and every part of the work in the most substantial and workmanlike manner, and both as regards materials and otherwise in every respect in strict accordance with the specifications. The contractor shall also conform exactly, fully and faithfully to the designs, drawings, and instructions in writing relating to the work signed by the Engineer-in-charge and lodged in his office, and to which the contractor shall be entitled to have access at such office, or on the site of the work for the purpose of inspection during office hours, and the contractor shall, if he so require, be entitled at his own expense to make or cause to be made copies of the specifications and of all such designs, drawings and instructions as aforesaid.

Works to be executed in accordance with specifications drawings, orders, etc.

Clause 12.—The Engineer-in-charge shall have power to make any alterations in, or additions to, the original specifications, drawings, designs, and instructions, that may appear to him to be necessary or advisable during the progress of the work, and the contractor shall be bound to carry out the work in accordance with any instructions which may be given to him in writing signed by the Engineer-in-charge, and such alteration shall not invalidate the contract: and any additional work for which the contractor may be directed to do in the manner above specified as part of the work shall be

The time for the completion of the work shall be extended in the proportion; that the additional work bears to the original contract work, and the certificate of the Engineer-in-charge shall be conclusive as to such proportion and if the additional work includes any class of work, for which no rate is specified in this contract, then such class of work shall be carried out at the rates entered in the schedule of rates of the district: and if such last mentioned class of work is not entered in the schedule of rates of the district, then the contractor shall within seven days of the date of his receipt of the order to carry out the work, inform the Engineer-in-charge of the rate which it is his intention to charge for such class of work, and if the Engineer-in-charge does not agree to this rate he shall, by notice in writing, be at liberty to cancel his order to carry out such class of work, and arrange to carry it out in such manner as he may consider advisable, Provided always that if the contractor shall commence work or incur any expenditure in regard thereto before the rates shall have been determined as lastly hereinbefore mentioned, then and in such case he shall only be entitled to be paid in respect of the work carried out or expenditure incurred by him prior to the date of the determination of the rate as aforesaid according to such rate or rates as shall be fixed by the Engineer-in-charge. In the event of a dispute, the decision of the Deputy Commissioner shall be final.

No compensation for alteration in, or restriction of, work to be carried out.

Clause 13.—If at any time after the commencement of the work the District Board shall for any reason whatsoever not require the whole thereof as specified in the tender to be carried out, the Engineer-in-charge shall give notice in writing of the fact to the contractor who shall have no claim to any payment or compensation whatsoever on account of any profit or advantage, which he might have derived from the execution of the work in full, but which he did not derive in consequence of the full amount of the work not having been carried out; neither shall he have any claim for compensation by reason of any alterations having been made in the original specifications, drawings, designs, and instructions which shall involve any curtailment of the work as originally contemplated.

Action and compensation payable in case of bad work.

Clause 14.—If it shall appear to the Engineer in charge or his subordinate in charge of the work, that any work has been executed with unsound, imperfect, or unskilful workmanship, or with materials of any inferior description, or that any materials or articles provided by him for the execution of the work are unsound, or of a quality inferior to that contracted for, or otherwise not in accordance with the contract, the contractor shall on demand in writing from the Engineer-in-charge specifying the work, materials or articles complained of, notwithstanding that the same may have been inadvertently passed, certified and paid for, forthwith rectify, or remove and re-construct the work so specified in whole or in part, as the case may require, or as the case may be, remove the materials or articles so specified and provide other proper and suitable materials or articles at his own proper charge and cost; and in the event of his failing to do so within a period to be specified by the Engineer-in-charge in his demand aforesaid, then the contractor shall be liable to pay compensation at the rate of one per cent. on the amount of the estimate for every day not exceeding ten days, while failure to do so shall continue, and in the case of any such failure the Engineer-in-charge may rectify or remove, and re-execute the work or remove and replace with others, the materials or articles complained of, as the case may be, at the risk and expense in all respects of the contractor.

The value of such stores and articles as may be supplied to the contractor by the Engineer-in-charge shall be debited to the contractor in his accounts at the rates shown in the schedule attached to the contract, and if they are not entered in the schedule, they shall be debited at cost price which for the purposes of this contract shall include the cost of carriage and all other expenses whatsoever, which shall have been incurred in obtaining delivery of the same at the stores aforesaid. Stores of European or American manufacture to be obtained from Government.

Measurement-Book.

Date.	Particulars.	DETAILS.				Contents or area.	Reference to last measurement.
		Number.	Length.	Breadth.	Depth.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8

1. The Measurement Book is a most important record being the basis of all accounts of quantities, whether of work done by daily labour, or by the piece, or by contract or of materials received which have to be counted or measured. The description of the work must be lucid, so as to admit of easy identification and check.

2. For large works a separate Measurement Book may be set apart, or, if found convenient, two or more books may be set apart for different classes of work.

3. Detailed measurements should be recorded only by the overseer or other officer in direct charge of works to whom Measurement Books have been supplied for the purpose.

4. Each set of measurement should commence with entries stating :—

(i) In the case of bills for work done—

(a) full name of work as given in estimate ;

(b) situation of work ;

(c) name of contractor ;

(d) number and date of his agreement or work order ;

(e) date of measurement.

(ii) In the case of bills for supply of materials—

(a) name of supplier ;

(b) number and date of his agreement or order ;

(c) purpose of supply in one of the following forms applicable to the case :—

(i) " Stock " (for all supplies for stock purposes).

(ii) " Purchase " for direct issue to (here enter full name of work as given in estimate) ....

(iii) " Purchases " for (here enter full name of work as given in estimate)..................... for issue to contractor .... on............................

(d) Date of measurement should end with the dated initials of the person making the measurements.

A suitable abstract should then be prepared which should collect, in the case of measurements for work done, the total quantities of each distinct item of work relating to each sanctioned sub-head.

5. No page should on any account be torn out of a book, nor should any entry be erased or disfigured so as to be illegible. If a mistake be made, it should be corrected by cancelling the incorrect words or figures with a single stroke of the pen or pencil and by writing the correct words or figures separately ; and the correction thus made should be initialled and dated. All signatures and initials made in the Measurement Book should be dated.

6. All measurements must be neatly recorded in the authorised form of Measurement Book, and in no other. The entries should be made, if possible, in ink, but when this is not possible and entries have to be made in pencil, the pencil entries should not be inked over but left untouched. The entries in the " Contents or Areas " column should, however, be made in ink in the first instance and not inked over.

7. As all payments for work or supplies are based on the quantities recorded in the Measurement Book, it is incumbent upon the person taking the measurements to record the quantities clearly and accurately. If the measurements are taken in connection with a running contract account on which work has been previously measured, he is further responsible (1) that reference to the last set of measurements is recorded, and (2) that if the entire job or contract has been completed, the fact is recorded prominently just above his initials. If the measurements taken are the first set of measurements on a running account, or the first and final measurements, this fact should be suitably noted against the entries in the Measurement Book.

8. Entries should be recorded continuously in the Measurement Book and no blank pages should be left. Any pages left blank inadvertently must be cancelled by diagonal lines, the cancellation being attested.

9. When any measurements are cancelled, the cancellation must be supported by the dated initials of the officer ordering the cancellation, or by a reference to his orders initialled by the officer who made the measurements. In either case the reason for cancellation should be recorded.

10. Each Measurement Book should be provided with an index which should be kept up to date.

11. The disbursing officer's clerk is responsible for the arithmetical check of all calculations entered in a Measurement Book; and he must initial (with date) each account in the book, in token of having so checked it.

12. The officer making the measurements must calculate the "Contents" or "Area" of each measurement and enter it in ink and abstract the results himself. The Measurement Book should then be submitted to the paying officer for his orders.

If he is satisfied that a bill should be prepared and that the name of the estimate has been correctly entered, he will check the rates, if entered, or fill in the correct rates and initial an order in the Measurement Book to the responsible clerk, to check and prepare bill.

13. When an officer or subordinate is required to submit his Measurement Book, with his accounts, to the District Engineer, he should be supplied, if necessary, with a second book for alternate use.

14. From the Measurement Book all quantities should be clearly traceable into the documents on which payments are made. When payment is made for the work measured, every page of the book recording the measurement, must be invariably scored out by a diagonal red ink line; and an endorsement must be made, in red ink, on every abstract of measurement giving a reference to the number and date of the voucher of payment.

These diagonal lines and endorsements must be made by the Disbursing Officer himself at the time of payment or immediately after. For the purpose of making the endorsement a rubber stamp as below may be used, but care should be taken not to obliterate any figures when using it :—

Paid, vide voucher No.__________

Dated __________

Disbursing Officer's

initials__________

15. The voucher for payment must invariably bear a reference to the number and page of the Measurement Book in which the measurements are recorded, also to the number and date of work order.

16. On the occasion of transfers, it will be the special duty of District Engineer to see the Measurement Books, with the relieved officer at the time, are recorded in the transfer papers by the numbers they bear, and are acknowledged by the relieving officer, and that necessary corrections are made in the name of officer on the fly-leaf of the Measurement Book.

17. In case a Measurement Book is lost, an immediate report should be made of the facts of the case; and this report must be promptly forwarded to the District Engineer together with the explanation of all parties concerned or responsible for the loss.

They will come into force from the date of this notification in supersession of the bye-laws published with the Commissioner's notification No. 34, dated the 2nd July 1917 :—

BYE-LAWS.

I.—Time and place of meeting.

1. Every meeting of the committee, whether ordinary or special, shall be held at a place, date and hour to be fixed for it by the president or in his absence by the vice-president; provided that where a committee has not yet elected a president, or a vice-president, the secretary may convene a meeting.

Ordinary meetings of the committee shall be held at least once a month.

II.—Manner in which notice shall be given.

2. (a) The notice of every meeting under bye-law 1 shall state the place, date and hour fixed for it and shall be signed by the president, vice-president or secretary.

(b) The notice shall be accompanied by a duly attested list of the business to be transacted at the meeting hereinafter called "agenda".

(c) The agenda shall include every matter that any member may desire to put to the meeting; provided that a copy of the motion thereon signed by such member and by a seconder is delivered to the secretary at the municipal office at least seven clear days before the date of the meeting.

(d) The notice and agenda shall be despatched so that at least one clear day for the meeting that is deemed to be urgent and three clear days for any other meeting shall intervene between the date of despatch and the date of the meeting.

3. Notice of an adjourned meeting shall be given by the chairman on the spot and the same shall, as soon thereafter as possible, be sent to all members of the committee who are absent : provided that it shall be lawful for the president or, in his absence, the vice-president to alter with due notice, on an emergency, the place, date or hour of such meeting.

4. All cases on the agenda of a meeting shall be made available in the secretary's office for the inspection of members immediately after the despatch of the agenda.

III.—Quorum.

5. No business shall be transacted at an ordinary meeting of a committee unless at least one-third of the total number of members are present.

6. In the absence of a quorum the chairman shall forthwith suspend the proceedings and adjourn the meeting.

IV.—Conduct of proceedings and the adjournment of meetings.

7. Every meeting shall commence with a motion by the chairman that the minutes of the previous meeting be confirmed. Such minutes shall ordinarily be taken as read, but if for any reason they have not been previously circulated to the members they shall be read before they are taken into consideration. Any member who was present at the previous meeting may object to the confirmation of the minutes by moving an amendment on the ground that any matter is not correctly recorded or expressed.

8. The chairman shall decide all points of order or procedure and his decision shall be final. Whenever he rises, any member speaking shall resume his seat.

9. The items on the agenda shall be dealt with in their order : provided that the chairman, with the consent of the majority of the members present, may vary such order or bring before the meeting any matter not included in the agenda.

10. If more than one member rise to speak at the same time, the chairman shall name the member who is to speak.

11. Members when speaking shall stand and address the chairman and except on a point of order, or personal explanation, the member speaking shall not be interrupted by any member other than the chairman.

12. No written speeches will be delivered.

13. So far as is possible and consistent with the matter under discussion no member shall direct personal or objectional remarks at any other member. For the purpose of this bye-law the ruling of the chairman shall be final.

14. A member desiring to raise a point of order or personal explanation shall rise and address the chairman. The member speaking shall then give way, and remain seated until the chairman has decided the point raised : provided that the chairman may permit any other member including the member called to order to speak on the said point.

15. If the meeting refuses to obey the ruling of the chairman on any matter he may adjourn it at once and once he declares the meeting adjourned on this or any ground, the subsequent proceedings of the meeting or any residue thereof shall be void and shall not appear in the minutes.

16. The chairman may, after calling the attention of the meeting to the conduct of a member, who persists in irrelevance or in tedious repetition of his own arguments or of the arguments used by other members, direct him to discontinue his speech.

17. The chairman may name an unruly member for report to Government for consideration under section 16 (1) (e) of the Act.

18. The chairman may direct any member, whose conduct is in his opinion grossly disorderly, to withdraw immediately from the meeting and any member so ordered to withdraw shall do so forthwith and shall unless recalled by the chairman absent himself during the remainder of the meeting. The chairman may cause to be summarily removed any member who disobeys an order to withdraw under this bye-law.

19. Every motion or resolution shall be read, and if seconded shall be deemed to be before the meeting for discussion. The mover shall speak first in support of the motion ; then the seconder may speak, or if he desires, he may reserve his speech to a later period of the debate.

20. A member may speak only once to each motion, but the mover or a seconder of a substantive motion or resolution may reply at the conclusion of the debate thereon : provided that the chairman at his discretion may at any time allow a member, who has already spoken, to make a brief explanation.

21. After a motion has been proposed and seconded, any member may propose an amendment thereto. An amendment that is not seconded falls through.

22. Any number of amendments may be before the meeting at the same time but they shall be put to the vote in reverse order to that in which they were moved. After all the amendments have been disposed of the resolution as amended shall be put to the vote.

23. A member who has already spoken on a substantive motion before the meeting is not thereby debarred from speaking on an amendment to the motion : provided that in so doing he confines himself strictly to the fresh matter introduced by the amendment.

24. No motion or amendment shall be withdrawn except with the consent of the meeting.

25. Every motion, resolution or amendment voted on shall be put to the meeting both for and against.

Proviso.—Nothing in this and the following bye-laws shall affect the provisions of the rules for the election of the president and vice-president, published in Punjab Government notification No. 4135, dated the 7th February 1924.

26. Unless a poll is demanded by any member present at meeting a declaration made at the meeting by the chairman that a motion, resolution or amendment has been carried or lost shall be sufficient warrant for making an entry to that effect in the minutes. If a poll is demanded by any member present it shall be taken by show of hands and the result of such poll as declared by the chairman shall be deemed to be the resolution of the committee.

27. No decision of a committee shall be re-opened before the lapse of six months after it has been recorded, except in compliance with an order of the Local Government or of the Commissioner or with the permission in writing of the president.

28. Any officer of Government or other person not being a member of the committee may, with the consent of the majority of members and the chairman address the meeting.

29. All meetings of the committee shall be open to the reporters of the press and, at the discretion of the chairman to the public; provided that the reporters or the public or both shall withdraw, if at any time so required by the chairman.

30. Except as provided in bye-law 28 no noise or expression of approval or disapproval on the part of the public or reporters present shall be permitted.

31. The chairman may cause any person other than a member of the committee who interrupts the business of the meeting to be summarily removed from the building in which the meeting is held.

32. No member may inspect the papers relating to a matter in which he or either of his parents or any other descendant of either of his parents or the husband or wife as may be of any such descendant has a direct or indirect pecuniary interest subject to this exception—

(a) members of the sub-committees and members charged with the performance of any special duty may inspect the papers connected with their duties at the secretary's office during office hours; and

(b) any other member may inspect documents and registers at the secretary's office during office hours but he may, except in the case provided for by bye-law No. 4, do so only with permission in writing of the president, or in his absence, of the vice-president.

An application for permission to inspect under clause (b) shall be in writing and state the papers to be inspected and the reasons for inspecting them. The president or vice president as may be, may refuse permission if the reasons given are in his opinion insufficient.

Proviso.—Nothing in this bye-law shall be deemed to deprive any person of a right to inspect a document under any law other than the Punjab Municipal Act, 1911.

1. Every meeting of the committee, whether ordinary or special, shall be held at a place, date and hour to be fixed for it by the president or in his absence by the vice-president; provided that where a committee has not yet elected a president, or a vice-president, the secretary may convene a meeting.

(d) The notice and agenda shall be despatched so that at least one clear day for the meeting that is deemed to be urgent and three clear days for any other meeting shall intervene between the date of despatch and the date of the meeting.

3. Notice of an adjourned meeting shall be given by the chairman on the spot and the same shall, as soon thereafter as possible, be sent to all members of the committee who are absent: provided that it shall be lawful for the president or, in his absence, the vice-president to alter with due notice, on an emergency, the place, date or hour of such meeting.

4. All cases on the agenda of a meeting shall be made available in the secretary's office for the inspection of members immediately after the despatch of the agenda.

Any member who was present at the previous meeting may object to the confirmation of the minutes by moving an amendment on the ground that any matter is not correctly recorded or expressed.

8. The chairman shall decide all points of order or procedure and his decision shall be final. Whenever he rises, any member speaking shall resume his seat.

25. Every motion, resolution or amendment voted on shall be put to the meeting both for and against.

(b) The notice shall be accompanied by a duly attested list of the business to be transacted at the meeting hereinafter called " agenda."

(c) The agenda shall include every matter that any member may desire to put to the meeting : provided that a copy of the motion thereon signed by such member and by a seconder is delivered to the secretary at the municipal office at least 7 clear days before the date of the meeting.

(d) The notice and agenda shall be despatched so that at least one clear day for a meeting that is deemed to be urgent and three clear days for any other meeting shall intervene between the date of despatch and the date of the meeting.

3. Notice of an adjourned meeting shall be given by the chairman on the spot and the same shall as soon thereafter as possible, be sent to all members of the committee who are absent ; provided that it shall be lawful for the president or in his absence the vice-president to alter, with due notice, on an emergency, the place, date or hour of such meeting.

4. All cases on the agenda of a meeting shall be made available in the secretary's office for the inspection of members immediately after the despatch of the agenda.

5. No business shall be transacted at an ordinary meeting of a committee unless at least one-third of the total number of members are present.

6. In the absence of a quorum the chairman shall forthwith suspend the proceedings and adjourn the meeting.

7. Every meeting shall commence with a motion by the chairman that the minutes of the previous meeting be confirmed. Such minutes shall ordinarily be taken as read, but if for any reason they have not been previously circulated to the members they shall be read before they are taken into consideration. Any member who was present at the previous meeting may object to the confirmation of the minutes by moving an amendment on the ground that any matter is not correctly recorded or expressed.

8. The chairman shall decide all points for order or procedure and his decision shall be final. Whenever he rises any member speaking shall resume his seat.

If a poll is demanded by any member present, it shall be taken by show of hands and the result of such poll as declared by the chairman shall be deemed to be the resolution of the committee.

27. No decision of a committee shall be re-opened before the lapse of six months after it has been recorded, except in compliance with an order of the Local Government or of the Commissioner or with the permission in writing of the president.
